About a quarter of a million yards of earth and rock have been excavated for the new N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R. terminal, or about one-sixth of the contract. Work has now been going on for 13 months. Questions and Answers.

NEW OWNER IS EXEMPT.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

A lease was made by a tenant for a loft in a building, for a term of two years from February 1st, 1903, with the privilege of three years' renewal. This lease was negotiated by our firm, and commission paid on the basis of 2½ per cent. on the first year's rental. This lease expires on February 1st, but during the past year the building was sold. The point in question is, can commission for the renewal of this lease be collected from the new owner? The former owner raises the point that, as he is no longer interested in the property, he cannot be held liable for any commission.

Answer.—No.

YOUR NEIGHBOR'S LIGHT.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

If "A" erects a building on property adjoining that owned by "B," and places windows in the side wall of said building, on the lot line looking into the yards or courts of "B's" property, but not encroaching thereon, does "A" ever acquire any right or title to the light and ventilation of "B's" property, "A's" building not being a tenement house? In other words, does the law of adverse possession apply to a case like this in regards to the light and ventilation; and, further, is "B" required to make any formal objection to said windows?

Answer.—No.

A BUILDER'S QUESTION.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

I have contracted with a plumber to do a certain job for a specified amount. After the work was done by him, I received a bill on which was $15 more than the contract figure. For filing of plans, $10, and for material stolen (?), $5. (1) Am I to pay for this? (2) Is it customary to pay for filing of plans? An agent sold a butcher business without first making an agreement as to the commission. (3) What is the usual commission in New York city? (4) Can agent charge commission for securing a tenant in addition to selling the business, as the owner was also the landlord? Term of lease is three years.

Answer.—(1) No. (2) No. (3) No custom. (4) Yes.

OWNER RESPONSIBLE IN DAMAGES.

To the Editor of THE RECORD AND GUIDE:

A, agent, lets house with store and takes deposit at 10 a. m. Sept. 2 for one year at $50 per month, rent to be paid from Sept. 1st and possession given if satisfactory to B, owner. C, party, calls on B, owner, on Sept. 1st and states he has a party to take store and house, stating he received the keys from A, agent, through another party to go through house. B, owner, calls with C, party, on A, agent, at 2 p. m., Sept. 2d, to obtain keys to go through house and store so that every thing would be satisfactory. A, agent clerk, said the keys are out. B, owner, takes $10 deposit from C, party, to show the house and store on Sept. 6th, and takes the balance of rent if satisfactory, which would be $30, agreeing with C, party, to have the house and store for $40 per month from the 15th of Sept., 1904, to the 15th of Sept., 1905. A, agent, notifies B, owner, on Sept. 3d, that he has let the house and store, reference satisfactory. B, owner, accepts his tenant on the 6th of Sept. C, party, refuses to take back deposit, stating he has sold out his business and would sue B, owner, for his loss. Kindly let me know if B, owner, is responsible, and what I should do with his $10 deposit, as he refuses to take it?

Answer.—(1) B, the owner, is responsible in damages to tenant to whom he has let house and to whom he now refuses possession. (2) Keep the deposit.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10. denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before 2d figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—E. R. North, 9 Maiden lane, New York, has awarded to Carlson Bros., Montclair, N. J., the general contract to build two 2-sty frame residences, 30x40 feet, to be erected on Park st, Montclair, at a cost of $14,000. L. C. Houck, of this place, is the owner.

PATERSON, N. J.—Contracts have been awarded for the new building for the Young Women's Christian Association to be erected at the northeast corner of Ellison and Church sts, Paterson, as follows: Charles H. The heating apparatus will be installed by Benjamin Roegiers, of 40 Church st, and the ironwork by James Radcliffe & Sons, of 12 Dewey st, both of Paterson.

DETROIT, Michigan.—Albert L. Stephens, 102 Union Trust building, Detroit, will b uild a dwelling for his own occupancy.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—The malt house of the Frank Jones Brewing Co.'s immense plant here was ruined by fire the past week, entailing a loss of over $150,000.

HANCOCK, N. Y.—Hancock, N. Y., is to have a new shirt making industry. Hull & Hartwell, of Troy, have had representatives in that town the past week and a piece of land has been leased of C. M. Lawton on Kinderhook creek. A large building is to be erected.

UTICA, N. Y.—A company, of which Victor Adams of Little Falls, N. Y., is said to be at the head, is to erect a box factory on Erie st, Utica, near the canal and west of the Utica Knitting Co. The building will be about 200 feet long and 1-sty high.

UTICA, N. Y.—William Casey has purchased the old Harrisville factory from A. H. Dart and has begun removing the frame to the site of the factory that was burned, where he will rebuild at once. Mr. Casey will be ready next spring with a factory second to none in this section.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—George C. Buell will erect a 5-sty fireproof building on Main st, Rochester. It will contain stores and offices, and the estimated cost is $80,000. MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

¶ The architect has his own troubles. Trying to succeed in spite of several bad roofs need not be one of them. "Taylor Old Style" roofing tin will insure that part of his reputation.

N. & G. TAYLOR COMPANY
ESTABLISHED 1810
Philadelphia

"Rufus the Roofer" is a breezy booklet, in which the roof question is threshed out in a new vein. It will be sent to anyone on receipt of ten cents in stamps, and is worth more than that simply as entertaining reading.

The Building Situation

The Cause and the Remedy

By Theodore Starrett

IT is hard to resist the temptation to put a little sauce on the dry meat of a discussion of the labor question, and so I hope I will be pardoned for telling a little story—a true story—of something that happened in the "Golden Age" of the railroad business when conductors at the end of each trip used to take all the cash collections, they say, and throw them in the air and what stuck to the bell cord was turned in to the railroad company, and what fell on the floor belonged to them. It was out West. A wise man was riding in a coach one day when a passenger got on and sat down in front of him. The conductor came through and the passenger asked him the fare to Junction City, and was informed that it was 85 cents. The man paid it. At the next station another passenger got on and sat down behind our hero. He, too, was bound for Junction City. The conductor sized him up, as all wise conductors did in those days, and informed him that the fare was $2.85. The passenger paid it. The wise man who heard both sides of the story was very indignant and started to protest, but the conductor rushed off to the baggage car. When Junction City had been reached and both passengers had left the train our hero, who was still on board, laid for the conductor and as he passed grabbed him by the coat tails and asked him why he had charged one passenger so much more than the other for a shorter distance. The reply was "My friend, that is because I understand this business and you don't."

Times have changed since then in the railroad business, but there are some other businesses where things happen that are hard to understand. The building business is one of them.

In the midst of temptation the prayer of us weak mortals is "Protect us from ourselves," and it is in answer to this prayer that every combination, whether trust, trade union or employers' association, has been formed. The man who needs business or the man who needs work is subject to the temptation, and nobody knows it so well as the stony hearted buyer, whether of goods or of labor.

One of the shrewdest contractors that I ever knew, and a very fine fellow, too, said to me once by way of excusing himself for taking some bad contracts, that the man who has business to offer can get it done at a loss every time if he sets out to do it, and this statement I believe to be absolutely true. There is no business in the world that is so unprotected and so exposed to merciless competition as the building business. The fact that anybody can go into it has left it in the hands of people who, as a rule, have nothing to lose and everything to gain. The bulk of building work to this day, in spite of employers' associations and every other check on competition that has even been devised, is done, as far as it concerns the labor end—and that's where the trouble all lies—by small employers who are little more than foremen for owners. The shrewd and, mayhap, unscrupulous owner can "trade the boots off" some one or another of this fraternity every time he tries it and it is a wise boss indeed who finds himself at the end of a job with a dollar more than when he started it. If ever a man needed protection from himself it is the small boss—and the large one, too, for that matter—in the building business.

Who is there of us that has lived in a small town that cannot remember the sign "Architect and Builder" over the shop of the prosperous carpenter contractor? Time was when the man who wanted a house built would go to the architect and builder who would furnish him drawings and an estimate, and after mutual dickering back and forth the contract would be closed. In the construction of this house the builder stood between the owner and the uncertainties of the building business. Generally he would make money on a building; occasionally he would lose, but as a whole the business was very prosperous.

Once upon a time there lived in a little village in Utopia an owner who was in the habit of going each year to an architect and builder and employing him to build him a house, making the best bargain he could each time. After a number of years the builder's clerk went to the owner and told him that his master was making a great deal of money. It was, of course, natural that the builder should have made money considering the responsibilities that he assumed. The owner listened to the words of the clerk, and as a result employed him on a salary to make the drawings of his next house and the clerk undertook to save the profit that the builder had been making. The owner bought his own material and got the builder's foreman, John, to leave his master and to take the contract for the labor and the work was started. After the floor joists were set John discovered that he was going to make a loss, that he had bid too low, and he was in a quandry. He started to watch for opportunities to make himself whole, and when the owner found that for some reason it was necessary for him to add a wing to the building John saw his chance. He demanded a very high price for the work, and the owner, being a close kind of an individual, refused to pay and said he would hire the workmen himself. Foreman John gathered his men together and said to them that the owner was trying to overreach him, and that he wanted them to stand with him and refuse to work for the owner. This they did. The owner then tried to get another foreman, George, who had also embarked in the same business as foreman John, to build this wing separately. Again foreman John appealed to his men, and told them what was brewing. The men sympathized with foreman John and they had a meeting with the workmen of foreman George, and the result was that they in turn agreed not to build the wing, and the owner was compelled to pay foreman John his price and the loss that threatened him on his original contract was avoided. Foreman George also had started to build up a business and he shortly found that one of his contracts for another owner was taken too low, so the same process was gone through in the second case and foreman George was saved by the aid of the men who worked for him.

As the years rolled by the business of the two foremen grew, and so did the number of their workmen. Competition went on merrily and each foreman felt that with his men at his back he could afford to take some pretty long chances for there was always a way out, and as a matter of fact some very fair business was done by both of them. But the workmen soon saw what was going on and wanted to have a slice of the general prosperity and they put their heads together. They found that they were really the masters and decided that they must have more wages. It was impossible for the foremen to deny them and after a few years the foremen found that they were getting the worst of it; that the high prices which they had been able to exact by the aid of the men were all paid out in wages, and they began to suspect that they were worse off than when they had all worked for the architect and builder. However, they piled up their charges still higher until the owners began to suspect something, and they refused to build any more. To add to the troubles the houses had cost so much money that the owners raised the rents and the butcher and the baker and the grocer and the tailor who were compelled to pay these rents raised their prices, and the workmen themselves had to pay higher rents, too. The whole town was in a very bad way, and everybody got to quarrelling. All friendly relations between the foremen and their workmen ceased. The workmen formed a union and steps were taken to enforce still higher wages. Output was restricted, and any man who worked faster than a certain rate was punished, but the higher the rate of wages the less was left in the family treasury at the end of each week. Still they kept on. There was now such bad blood between the foremen and the workmen that strikes were resorted to and these took up a great deal of time, so that where, before the days of th foremen, there had been steady work throughout the season, employment became so precarious that the men did not work a quarter of the time, and that is where we will leave them for the present.

The condition that now exists in New York City, as far as the elementary causes are concerned, is like the condition that existed in that little village. The complex modern life of the city has produced some thirty to forty schisms each more or less like the one above described, and what has made matters worse is the fact that there is friction in every direction—not only friction between the employers and the men of each trade, but friction between the employees in different trades and friction between employers in different trades, not to mention the old friction between owners and employers. The people who are in this business have all of them—owner, contractor and mechanic—got into the trouble innocently enough and with the very best intentions. The employer wanted to save the profit he was paying to the builder—a thing he had a perfect right to do. If he played on human nature too hard and got the price too low it was the fault of the builder for giving way. But, the mischief having been done, who could blame the builder for getting his men to help him out? And, on the other hand, who could blame the men who helped the employer out for wanting to participate in the proceeds?

Poor Human Nature, how much mischief she has to answer for!

* * * * * *

One of the best of Aesop's fables is the one about the Wind and the Sun. The Wind and the Sun once had an argument as to which could soonest make a traveler take off his cloak. The Wind started in with a terrific blast, the clouds opened and the rain was dashed upon him and the thunderbolts made a din that would strike terror to the stoutest heart, but the harder it blew the tighter the traveler wrapped his cloak about him. At last the Wind ceased trying and the Sun came out, and, lo, and behold, the traveler took off his cloak and laid it on the grass to dry.

It seems inconceivable that so bad a condition as that in which the building business finds itself can be cured by any simple remedy, but if the sunlight of common sense is allowed to shine on this demoralized realm it will surely have the same effect as in the case of the traveler's cloak. There is a great misunderstanding abroad in this land, and if that is removed the disease will surely cure itself. The two parties to this battle are so enraged and so blinded by passion that they have forgotten the cause of it. They have got to be separated by the rest of the public and made to cool off and see what they are really doing. This is the Land of the Free and the two belligerents will be made to know it. Nothing could be so repugnant to our national idea as the anarchistic and un-American phases of the passion that is now running riot.

The American idea of individualism is what is going to help this situation wonderfully. The difficulty, as far as the owner is concerned, we have always with us, but two wrongs do not make a right in the building business any more than they do anywhere else. Employers cannot protect themselves from themselves at the expense of a third party. As between the employers and the mechanics the active constituent members of each class are sick of the whole business. Members of some of the high-waged trade unions are beginning to try to get employment outside of their trades. I know of mechanics in good standing who are anxious to get steady work in some other business at $15 a week. Few members of a high-waged union who are the fathers of families desire to see their sons enter a trade; in fact the trades do not attract the thinking American as they should.

But there is an office-holding class among the trade unions which does not wish to see the conditions changed. It is composed of men who like to get the floor in the labor meetings. These men form the small cliques that run the unions; they do not want to see a change. Among the employers the individual members are sick of being led about by the nose by the talkative leaders, whose theories are worked out at other peoples' expense. It is all very well for the contractor who has a fine flow of words to go to the employers' association meetings and lay down the law about arbitration agreements and open shops and trade-union matters generally; he has nothing else to do. But the employer who has business and who is compelled to get his work done by unskillful, half-trained mechanics, and the owner who has to accept the work produced by them, are the real sufferers.

A close study of the whole problem, whether it be the mechanics' part or the employers', shows a condition very like that of the Southern States before the Civil War. There is a certain class which will suffer by a change, but the rank and file of the employers and mechanics both will heave a sigh of relief when the principle that solved the national problem, viz: "The greatest good to the greatest number"—shall prevail, and when the trouble is over the employers on the one hand and the trade-union officials on the other will find themselves better off, just as the slaveholders of the South have found themselves better off.

The union will not go. It has a legitimate work of seeing that unjust exactions are not practised against its members. Then, too, it is the school where mechanics are taught. The employers' association will not go. It is the counter-check on the unions. But inter-trade barriers, like Mason and Dixon's line, must and will be swept away. A man who is a skilful mechanic shall have the right to work at his trade anywhere in this country that he chooses. The employer may sigh for the day when he could get the backing of his old cronies to help him recoup himself for a mistake, the result of his own recklessness; but he might as well sigh for the moon.

As the years had passed the little village had grown so that the two foremen and their workmen made a very small percentage of the entire population. Other industries had been established beside the building business and all together their numbers far exceeded fifty-fold, nay, a hundred-fold—the number in the building business. In the other industries the product had been for outside consumption and the law of supply and demand had fixed prices in such a way that the workmen were compelled to be content with wages like those that had been paid in the days of the architect and builder. But the conflict between the foremen and their workmen had grown to be so violent that it attracted the attention of the whole town, and workmen in other industries began to be discontented, because they could not get the same wages that the workmen in the building business got, and they began to try to get work in the building business, which, of course, only made things worse. The continuance of the fight, however, stirred up such trouble that the whole town stopped working and everything was paralyzed. Things finally came to such a pass that the law had to be invoked, and foremen John and George and all their workmen were arrested and brought to bar. When the trial came off the judge was informed that the owners were the cause of the whole trouble, because they had induced the foremen to work too cheaply, so the owners were brought to bar, too. After all the facts were learned the judge announced his decision. It was ordered by the Court that the owners should refrain from trying to get work done below a living price. To the clerk the judge said: "It seems to me that you are at the bottom of this whole business, but I will allow you to go free, as it is quite evident that you, too, did what you thought was for the best interest of all; but I warn you that if you get any more owners to drive too close bargains with foremen you will be sentenced to take a turn at being a foreman yourself." It was further ordered by the Court that the foremen should, on penalty of being dismissed from the community, never again undertake work too cheaply. To the workmen the judge said: "It would be justice to you to reduce your wages to the rate which you received in the days of the architect and builder, but the cost of living has increased to such a point that this would be unmerciful, so it is ordered that you shall be allowed to continue to receive the wages you are now getting on condition that you cease forever from the practice of restricting output; that you shall allow workmen from other industries to work with you, and that you shall do each day enough work to make a proper return for your wages."

The judge turned to the assembled multitude and made the following remarks: "It is evident that the foremen and their workmen are in partnership in what is really a foolish business, for they are like the man who undertook to hire a lot of smugglers to go out and bring some goods in from across the border. When the goods were brought in the smugglers took them to their own houses and kept them, and their employer was unable to compel them to give them up." Then, turning to the foremen and their workmen, he said: "The sentence I have just delivered on you is one which possibly may not be sufficient to deter you from returning to your old practices, but I will have the Town Marshall keep his eye on you in the future, and if any of you disobey my injunctions you will be put in jail."

So ended the story of the owner, the clerk, the foremen and the workmen. Some day the chronicler of Utopia may tell of the adventures of the clerk with some other owners; but that will be another story.

The reorganization plan for improvement at the Building Department is to be taken up again by the first of the new year. This statement was made this week by the Superintendent of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings, Hon. Isaac A. Hopper. The proposition for an increased force of inspectors and a more suitable remuneration for all that was presented by Mr. Hopper last August have been approved by the Board of Aldermen and by the Mayor, but this is as far as the matter has developed.

Mr. Hopper's plan is that the borough be divided into six inspection districts with a chief inspector in charge of each and the work so apportioned and systemized to ensure promptness and thoroughness.

One Year of Arbitration

By SAMUEL B. DONNELLY,
Secretary of the General Arbitration Board.

THE first section of the Arbitration Plan announced by the Building Trades Employers' Association in June, 1903, and later adopted by a general conference between the association and representatives of the various unions on July 3, 1904, reads as follows: "In general the employers and employees of each trade are organized. This applies particularly to the mechanics of the trades and those helpers' organizations from which the mechanics of the trades are largely derived."

This was a frank statement of the conditions existing in the building industry. They could have truthfully said, "with few exceptions, every interest with which we transact business is organized," therefore we are compelled to organize.

The proposition of the employers was not that a contest be waged for the changing of the conditions of relationship, but that an honest effort be made to establish and maintain peace under the admitted conditions then existing.

A number of unions signed the Arbitration Agreement for the reason that they believed in arbitration, and sincerely desired peace. A few signed as a matter of expediency and four refused to agree to any proposition that would bind them to the principle of arbitration. Of the four that refused, two reorganized and signed the agreement six months later, one signed a truce with the Mason Builders' Association, and with one the members in the employ of the association left their union and formed a new organization.

Normal conditions were resumed during November, 1903, and from December 1, 1903, until March 4, 1904, no strike or lockout occurred on the work of the 900 members of the association.

On the latter date the masons' laborers struck and remained out until April 7, when they returned to work with the understanding that their grievances should be arbitrated.

For fourteen weeks another era of peace continued, until July 18, when the carpenters, in violation of the arbitration agreement ordered a strike on the work of a member of the association. The employing carpenters suspended work and at the expiration of one week the strike was declared off and work was resumed.

On August 8, as a result of strikes ordered on the Trinity Building and the Subway all carpenter, electrical, plastering, tile and plumbing work was suspended. On August 22d the resumption of work in these trades began and new unions have been organized in each industry. A few minor strikes of short duration occurred during the months of August and September.

Since the general acceptance of the Arbitration Agreement and the normal resumption of work on December 1, 1903, there has been thirty weeks of general peace and twenty weeks of partial suspension of work in some trades. The time lost by strikes, however, has not exceeded that lost in the previous year. Nevertheless the impression seems to be general that arbitration in the Building Trades is a failure.

Did not the employers and the public expect the impossible to be accomplished by arbitration, considering the conditions that had existed for years and the fact that a number of unions signed the agreement simply because it seemed to their leaders to be the expedient thing to do?

For years force and bribery had been the adequate arguments in the adjustment of disputes. To summarily substitute a court of arbitration for these weapons of offence and defence was right, but not sufficient for the regeneration necessary to the willing acceptance of right.

Conciliation and arbitration as a method of adjusting labor disputes have invariably been adopted only after periods of incessant strife.

The loss of the Burlington and Reading strikes caused the locomotive engineers to become conservative. The enormous losses of the Chicago stereotypers and other strikes made the publishers and printers of the country adopt an arbitration agreement. The terrible suffering caused by the Hocking Valley strike resulted in an arbitration agreement between the Ohio coal operators and the miners' unions, and the same is true of all the arbitration agreements in existence in the industrial world to-day, both in America and England.

The Unions in the New York building trades that signed the arbitration agreement last year because they sincerely desired an honorable peace have continued to work under that agreement. Those that signed the agreement at the end of a fight to a finish are continuing to observe it. Those that signed it simply for reasons of expediency constitute a majority of the organizations now locked out.

It is true that both employers and employees frequently endeavored to evade the arbitration of questions in dispute. The reason for this is simple. At the end of a period of warfare they were not willing to arbitrate any question that might involve the abandonment of a position won in the contest.

It is not generally known that in the renewal of agreements expiring since the Arbitration Agreement went into effect in every case increases of wages have been secured by the unions either as a result of conference or arbitration.

The members of nineteen unions have not lost a day's work in one year through being called out on strike.

Peace is the only benefit that arbitration offers to the employer.

A number of cases of trade jurisdiction were not promptly adjusted. This seems to be the principal complaint of the trade unions. These cases were not adjusted promptly, particularly for the reason that the unions parties to the complaint continually exerted their efforts to postpone arbitration with the hope that before arbitration was resorted to they would succeed in exterminating their adversary.

Why does the unionist fight his fellow unionist so bitterly? In some cases the contest is waged out of pure malice. In many cases one of the combatants is fighting for his existence. This is particularly true in those trades where work is specialized and has become a simple process. The specialist must depend upon a simple specialty for his bread and butter. He cannot work at anything else and fiercely resents any intrusion upon his limited field.

The substitution of iron products for wood work of various kinds is another fertile source of trade jurisdiction disputes. The wood worker sees his trade absorbed by shops and various kinds of iron men and he considers that he is fighting for self-preservation.

To establish inflexible lines of trade jurisdiction has been impossible. Where the work performed by trades is similar in character and particularly where the work of one is substituted for that of another, thereby throwing mechanics out of employment, the question of jurisdiction should be waived and union membership should be interchangeable; that is, the men who can perform the work satisfactorily should be permitted to do so, wage scales being equal. Such a policy would be an evidence that the vaunted brotherhood of organized labor really existed.

Are not conciliation and arbitration the only known means for adjusting disputes peaceably?

One Year of Arbitration.

They have proven partially successful and will be completely so when employers' associations admit to membership all reputable employers upon the payment of a reasonable initiation fee, and when the unions admit to membership all reputable mechanics upon the payment of a reasonable fee.

The first step in this direction has been taken by the Building Trades Employers' Association in requiring its affiliated associations to admit to membership the general contractor who engages in all branches of the industry.

The General Arbitration Board must simply be a court of last resort, and should only act after conferences between the trades have proven ineffective or trade agreements have been violated. All interested should be fairly represented on such board, and the unions must cease to support an organization that in any manner violates its trade or arbitration agreement, and the employer who violates an agreement must not only forfeit the support of the Building Trades Employers' Association, but he must forfeit the respect and patronage of architects and owners.

THE stock market has not been declining during the past week, but it has been hesitating, and well it may. The hesitation may be a prelude to a further advance or to a temporary reaction; but in any case the hesitation itself is wholesome and is likely to be continued throughout December or longer. December is rarely a good month in the stock market, and after the recent advance there is every reason why a good deal of caution should be shown in making any further speculative commitments. Undoubtedly the attempt will be made eventually to advance prices still further; but we doubt whether under existing conditions the attempt will be successful. In case it were successful, it would be followed in all probability by a severe reaction. The point is, that prices are undoubtedly as high as existing earnings warrant, so that, while they cannot well decline as long as business is good, they are more likely during the next few months to fluctuate irregularly than they are to move steadily or largely either in one direction or the other.

THERE is nothing new to report about the current real estate market, except that the volume of business is greater than ever. The total number of transactions which appear in our "Gossip" columns is not far from 380, and the filing at the Register's office during the week have been, considering the period of the year, quite unprecedented. In Manhattan all this activity has been fairly well distributed. Out of over 200 sales, about 100 have consisted of flats and tenements, and about 70 of vacant lots. The number of private dwellings sold, which is 25, is more than any week this fall, and constitutes an encouraging development in the market. An increase in the demand for such buildings is to be welcomed, because of its effect upon prospective building operations. It is better for brokers, property-owners and operators that a fair proportion of the new residential accommodation should take the form of individual dwellings. The increased demand for business buildings, which was noticeable last week, does not show in the transactions of the current week; but this omission is probably accidental. All conditions point to an excellent demand for business property in 1905. The Bronx speculation still continues on a prodigious scale. More than 1,800 lots have been reported as sold since our last issue. The activity is, as usual, however, extremely one-sided. Out of about 175 transactions, 150 consist of vacant lots.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE wishes to call particular attention to the discussions which are being printed in its columns of the labor situation in the building trades. This discussion has been started and is being kept up because of a conviction that there is something in the relation between the unions and the Employers' Association which is radically wrong, and which no action now being taken is tending to cure. Wherein this radical difficulty exists we hope to bring out clearly in the course of the discussion; but in the meantime it is well to keep clearly and constantly in mind just what hangs upon securing a comparatively permanent and satisfactory settlement. We do not believe that we are exaggerating in declaring that the uncertainty produced by these labor troubles is an effective obstacle in preventing a couple of the most prosperous years which the real estate and building market of New York has ever seen. This promise of prosperity depends upon the present prospect for a widely diversified and consequently wholesome activity. The years 1901 and 1902 were chiefly remarkable, as we all know, for a great building movement on high-priced property situated along the central ridge of Manhattan—a movement that resulted in the erection of many tall office and loft buildings, hotels, theatres, and the like. In 1903 the volume of this business very much diminished, and in 1904 it has diminished still further. The majority of the skyscrapers now being erected are buildings which were planned in 1902 or early in 1903, but were delayed in completion by the labor troubles. In the meantime, however, an enormous increase has taken place in the building of tenement houses and flats. Operations of this kind will continue during 1904 in even greater volume than during 1903; but to them would be added, provided the labor troubles were no obstacle, a large volume of high-class construction. Not only are there many building projects, such as the new Singer Building and the Brunswick Hotel, which have been long contemplated and are held up solely because of the strike terror, but general conditions are such that many new projects would immediately come out in case this terror did not exist. The business of the city is again demanding more room. Vacant offices in the financial district are filling up; the hotels are crowded; general trade is brisk. Manhattan is ready to resume the expansion which culminated in 1903; and in case it can do so, it will mean good times for everybody. This is the stake which the present labor troubles is imperiling, and it is to be hoped that a settlement will be reached in time to prevent big operations from being postponed another year. But better far an indefinite postponement than a hollow and deceptive peace.

The Knickerbocker Building.

Excavating continues on the site of the future "Knickerbocker Building," to be erected for Jacob Rothschild, of the Hotel Netherland, on the southeast corner of Fifth av and 16th st, formerly occupied by one of New York's fine old-time brick mansions. The building was originally intended to be eleven stories high 38.6x159 feet in size, but the revised and final plans of the architect,

THE KNICKERBOCKER BUILDING.
Southeast corner of Fifth avenue and 16th street.
Albert S. Gottlieb, Architect.

Albert S. Gottlieb, of 156 Fifth av, provide for a structure fifteen stories in height and 106.5x159 feet in size, made possible by Mr. Rothschild's purchase of the two adjoining avenue lots. The four upper stories will be used for large offices and sample rooms, the remaining stories as open lofts. There will be four passenger and four freight elevators. A chute extending the full height of the building and having an opening on each floor, will end in a crematory in the cellar. On the roof will be a luncheon and smoking room for the general public. The building will be thoroughly equipped with all modern improvements and conveniences. It is to be completed by Feb. 1st, 1906.

The Journeyman Has His Say

A Reply to the Statements Issued by Messrs. Theodore Starrett and Lewis Harding Regarding the Troubles in the Building Trades

By THE UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF CARPENTERS AND JOINERS

The statement made by Mr. Theodore Starrett and published in the Record and Guide of Nov. 19, 1904, contains a great amount of truth alongside of many allegations which to the majority of union mechanics must perforce remain unintelligible until the author condescends to furnish a specific bill of particulars. When he says "that the unions are not to blame for this muss and they are a necessity to protect the weak against the rapacity and greed of unscrupulous employers," he utters a truth which the majority of all fair-minded employers in the building trades recognize, but dare not express.

When he says: "I venture the opinion that there can be permanently no non-union shop in the building business in any great city in this country; the union is an old institution that is here to stay, and no sensible man would try to stop it"—he speaks a self-evident truth that no student of economic and industrial conditions could hope to successfully deny.

Further on that: "The Kilkenny cat fight has got to be stopped, though I think it will be necessary for outsiders to do it, and the outsiders in this case are the public," may prove to be correct, and the outsider has a very effective way of stopping it, which we will endeavor to point out further on.

It is also beyond question to the wise "that when the trouble is patched up and the mechanics sign a humiliating arbitration agreement individually, once the trial comes it will be found a hollow mockery;" as witness the formation of the new central body of the building trades with a membership of thirty-two unions and one hundred thousand members, so that he who runs may read.

We recognize in Mr. Theodore Starrett a fair-minded and honorable employer, one who in his work has had but few difficulties with organized labor and those few not caused by himself. Yet, when he states "that nobody is trying to cut down wages," we pause and ask, What, then, did the Employers' Association mean when they inserted in their famous plan of arbitration, which they forced the unions to swallow whole in July, 1903? "Resolved, That the wages now paid in the unskilled trades (later the skilled were included) shall not be reduced, nor the hours increased for the term of one year from the date of the general acceptance of this agreement." What? If they did not desire to be free to reduce wages or lengthen hours of labor after the expiration of that year.

Is it not a fact that they attempted in July, 1903, to reduce the wages of the Plasterers' Laborers 50 cents per day? Also to lengthen the hours of the Masons' Laborers to nine or ten per day. Also did they not in certain trim mills in the Bronx reduce the wages from a minimum of $18 per week to a minimum of $15 per week at the same time increasing the hours of daily toil from eight to nine?

Which are the unions "that are unrestrained by any sense of responsibility to the other members of society," and what sense of responsibility have the other members of society toward legitimate associations of mechanics endeavoring by legal means to improve and protect the conditions of their members? The question is pertinent when a combination of several hundred employers can and does lock out 20,000 to 30,000 working men, saying to the other members of society: "You shall not build" and to the mechanic: "You shall not labor," thus depriving the family of earnings, the storekeeper of trade, the manufacturer of work and injuring the entire community.

Mr. Starrett certainly will not attempt to make any intelligent person believe that 30,000 mechanics will be controlled "by a perverted element" so as to engage in a struggle for the past four months, which means incalculable privations to themselves and their families, enormous loss of wages and a cash expenditure to date of about $1,000,000? No, the rank and file of the unions control the policy and actions of same, and only a full realization of the intolerable conditions forced upon them and the injustice meted out to them have caused them to engage in the present struggle and will impell them to continue it to a just termination.

GRAFT AND WALKING DELEGATES.

The cry of Graft regarding walking delegates and their arbitrary power has only been raised and used to prejudice the public mind and further create public apathy to the means employed by the "conspiracy" to crush organized labor for their own benefit and purpose. While organized labor is but human and may err, and we do not pretend to be all angels, yet it is boldly asserted and can be proven that no representative of organized labor has ever been dishonest until he yielded to the temptations continually offered him by employers; yea, to those that by bribery first made him a Grafter. And when the roll is called between dishonest representatives of all callings, by their lawyers, bank cashiers, clergymen or walking delegates, the percentage to be found lowest will be the walking delegate. Nor is there any representative more under control and with less power than the business agent of a labor union. He cannot call a strike where six men are involved without consent of the union. His term of office being only six months, he must be extremely careful to please the rank and file if he hopes to be re-elected. But this is getting off the subject.

As to the allegation: "That there were understandings in connection with almost every building of importance whereby a small coterie of the leading employers would divide up the work," we know nothing of it, but we do know that the unions as a whole have not themselves nor have they permitted their business agents to foster any such scheme.

No obstacle has ever been raised against an employer from another city to do business here by any of the large unions and I could mention others in substantiation besides those quoted by Mr. Harding. The only trouble of that kind that arose was caused by employers importing work otherwise done by union mechanics in this city, from non-union shops and firms located outside of this city, where a system of long hours and low wages prevailed. And that sin was indulged in by as many of the local builders as by those coming from outside.

And who will blame the New York union mechanic when he protects his labor against unfair competition? Do not the laws of the country protect the prosperity of the nation against the influx of Chinese coolie labor? Against contract labor? Against European pauper labor? Do not the tariff laws of the nation protect the American mechanic against foreign pauper competition? What is good for the nation must be equally good for New York.

All work made by union men, under equal conditions, is welcomed by the union man of New York, even if that same union man is compelled for weary weeks to trot the pavements of New York in search of the employment that will support his children and dependents, while his more fortunate brother in the country does the work for his home city that he otherwise might be employed upon.

Neither is it true "that union men from other cities—just as good union men as ever lived—are not allowed to work in this city."

Nearly all the unions in this city are national in their scope. The Carpenters, Painters, Housesmiths, Bricklayers, Roofers and Metal Workers, Tilelayers, etc., all are national. The Brotherhood of Carpenters alone is an organization of over 190,000 mechanics spread over the United States and Canada, and every member thereof can work on any union job in any town in this country, the only condition being that he receive the same wages and work the same hours as the local men.

In fact, the only alleged union men that are not national and cannot work anywhere in the land, but are confined to this city, are the rump unions formed by the "conspiracy" of the scabs that they have been able to get together.

Mr. Starrett certainly cannot expect that when he sometimes requires 600 carpenters and at other times barely 30 that 570 will stand idly waiting on the street corner till he may require their services again.

If it is true, as stated by Mr. Starrett, "that the abuses that have been perpetrated as a result of certain practices of the employers in the building trades are the true cause of the whole trouble," and if "the subordinate Employers' Association of which the Building Trades Employers' Association is formed, are planing to continue the conspiracy," why is Mr. Theodore Starrett in it and part of it?

Is it because the bonds of all the members require him "to obey and execute all decisions, orders, prohibitions and regulations of the Board of Governors of said Building Trades Employers' Association," or is it because of Circular Letter No. 89, which, issued by the Board of Governors, orders all members: "TO MAKE CONTRACTS WITH MEMBERS OF THE BUILDING TRADES EMPLOYERS' ASSOCIATION ONLY"?

In other words, does he fear being penalized as "liquidated damages" in the amount of his bond or being boycotted according to above quoted Circular Letter No. 89?

If so, then he should seek the protection of D. M. Parry's Citizens' Industrial Association, which, according to prospectus, is organized "to secure protection for all in the exercise of their divine and constitutional rights to work when, where, for whom and at such rates of wages they may please"—then no "conspiracy" of employers can coerce him into doing otherwise, as they attempted to do with Mr. George Schaettler on Nov. 7, 1904.

As for the comment of Mr. Lewis Harding, we feel hardly inclined to enter into any argument with him. It is safe to say that if it was not for the Hardings the present trouble in the building trades would not exist. Any man who, upon his oath, has testified before the Building Committee of the Board of Education, in his official capacity as Secretary of the Master Carpenters' Association, that he did not have a man in his employ that received the union standard of wages, can hardly expect consideration from a labor union.

We will content ourselves with saying that all of the out-of-town firms mentioned by Mr. Harding as doing business in this city were doing so many years before the Building Trades Employers' Association was formed.

The statement indulged in "that the building public can no more permit the disruption of the Building Trades Employers' Association than a city could dispense with its police force or a State with its militia" is so outrageously ridiculous that it requires no comment further than to say that the police powers they would like to exercise would be those formerly exercised by the slaveholder over his black human chattels. Every citizen will agree that every class of the public can be and is amply protected by the law and the regular constituted police force. No self-interested private police associations are required.

NOT OPPOSED TO IMPARTIAL ARBITRATION.

Speaking for ourselves, the labor unions are not and have never been opposed to fair and impartial arbitration. The existing trouble could have been settled by such arbitration months ago had the Employers' Association so willed it. But no, all their assertions to the contrary notwithstanding, the aim of the larger part of their organization is the destruction of the power of labor unions and to permit them to exist in name only, but powerless to protect the interests of their members. The trouble last year was caused by dual organizations as well as hundreds of similar disturbances, yet they are trying to create more dual unions and more trouble.

What the unions object to and resent is a one-sided and unfair arbitration agreement, drawn up for the employers' benefit only, drawn up by the employers' lawyers, forced on the employee and one that has been declared "not a mutual or reciprocal one, having no binding force on individuals and not enforcible by any action" by the Supreme Court of this State. We object when the Board of Arbitration, the supposed highest authority, gives a decision in favor of the labor unions, to having the Board of Governors refuse to recognize that decision and order a lockout against such decision. We maintain that by the same right that one carpenter has to support a brother carpenter against wrong by strike or otherwise, that by the same right the mechanics of one trade may assist those of another trade against wrong inflicted upon them. We claim to have as much right to recognition of our central body of building trades, as they have to claim recognition for their Board of Governors which is only a central body of representatives of various employers' organizations. We maintain that it requires both parties to an agreement, to make it as well as to abrogate any part of it. We say their Board of Governors has no right to notify the unions, as they did, that a right exercised by them for nearly a year is hereby abrogated.

The agreement provided "that the question of sympathetic strikes must be referred to the General Board of Arbitration." That proves that the right existed, otherwise there could be no question. And when certain unions were complained of by the employers to the Board of Arbitration for entering into a sympathetic strike against non-union men and the Board of Arbitration decided in favor of the unions and dismissed the employers' complaint, thus recognizing the justice of the sympathetic strikes, the Board of Governors ordered the lockout, thus refusing to accept the verdict of the final court, the General Arbitration Board.

And where is the improvement brought about by the Building Trades Employers' Association for the building public?

Formerly isolated strikes took place of shorter or longer duration on one particular building where a grievance existed. All other buildings went on without interruption. To-day when a grievance arises on one building only, all building is stopped and hundreds of the building public to financial loss by the Building Trades Employers' Association even though no trouble exists on any of the other work.

From such improvement of the industrial conditions may the good Lord protect the building public.

The remedy is not stated correctly by Mr. Starrett. To-day the entire loss, caused by delay through lockouts, such as interest on investment, loss of rents, etc., is borne by the owners and they are the building public. The building trades employer who locks out the laborer does not bear it. There lies the remedy. Let owners refuse to sign contracts with builders which contain a so-called strike clause, which extends the builder's time for completion whenever at his sweet will he chooses to lock out the mechanics and then claims there is a strike on. Let them treat the contractor, building a house for them, the same as they do their tailor or shoemaker—that is, when the goods ordered or contracted for are finished and delivered, then pay for them, and not sooner. As long as they continue to pay on account in installments on completion of certain sections of the work it will be their own money that is carrying on the operation and their loss when work stops. Put the loss on the party that stops the work and combinations for lockouts will cease to exist. Respectfully submitted,

D. F. FEATHERSTONE, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Library Stack Work.

A STATEMENT BY MR. POULSON, OF THE HECLA IRON WORKS, REGARDING THE AWARD.—A TEMPORARY INJUNCTION GRANTED.

The Board of Estimate having approved of the award of the contract for the stack work in the New York Public Library to the Snead Company Iron Works (bids opened September 22), Supreme Court Justice Mareau, in Brooklyn, this week granted a temporary injunction restraining the Park Commissioners, Comptroller Grout and the Snead Company Iron Works from proceeding with the work. The injunction was granted upon the petition of Mr. N. Poulson, president of the Hecla Iron Works of Brooklyn.

In reply to an inquiry from the Record and Guide as to why the contract was not awarded to the lowest bidder, Mr. Poulson made this statement of the case:

"There were a good many bidders, and each, in addition to his estimate, had furnished a full-sized model showing he was able to do the work; all the models from the different concerns, barring one or two, were up to the requirements of the architects' plans and specifications, and it seemed that the only thing that would guide the award of the contract was the price. A day or two before the bids were opened, the Snead Company, through its attorney, informed all the bidders that if they undertook to do the work, they would be prosecuted, as the Snead Company claimed to have a patent on the construction of book-stacks as specified for this library.

"The construction of the book-stack work for this library is modeled after the construction used in the Congressional Library, which again is modeled after the construction of a library in the State Department of Washington, and that, in turn, is modeled after a library built by us something over twenty-five years ago for the Navy Department in Washington; after that was built it was considered quite a step forward in library construction by Colonel Casey and Lieutenant Green, who had charge of constructing the building in Washington for the State, War and Navy Departments. After the library for the Navy Department was built, I was invited by Colonel Casey and Lieutenant Green to assist them in planning the construction for a library in the State Department, and, at their request, I furnished a full-sized model of the book-stack work to be used by the different bidders as a basis for their estimates, I to be among the bidders. The Snead Iron Works were, at that time, doing the structural work on which the book-stack work was to rest.

"A week or two before the bids were opened, Mr. Snead called upon me and said he had seen our model on exhibition at the office in Washington, and had admired it very much, as there were many things in connection with ironwork which were entirely new to him, and, as he was not a bidder for the library work and was not, therefore, a competitor, he would like to see in our plant just how such work was done. I took him around, showed him the plant, and about two weeks after the bids were opened in Washington. The Snead Company was the lowest bidder and the contract was awarded to it. Some time after, he wanted us to take the contract off his hands as, he said, he knew nothing about library work, but I refused to take the contract from him, and he had to do the work himself. He managed, however, to get some one from our place who was familiar with our mode of construction, to go with him to Louisville, Kentucky, and who instructed him how to do the work.

"The models which we had furnished for the State Department have all the elements of construction which are now generally used for library book-stacks, with no patent covering them, so the construction was open to everyone. In the architects' specifications for this library work, attention is called to a law which states that no patented construction should be used, and, as Mr. Snead claims that the construction according to his bid is patented, and he threatens to prosecute any one undertaking to do the work according to the architects' plans and specifications, it seems to me that he bars himself out from doing the work at any price. All the rest of the bidders are bidding according to the plans and specifications on which there is no patent, as I know that the construction originated with us more than twenty years ago, and as we never patented it, any one of the bidders has a right to do the work according to the architects' plans and specifications.

"When the Congressional Library was to be built, Lieutenant Green asked us for permission to remove our models from the State Department to the office for the construction of the Congressional Library, and I can fairly claim that the particular mode of construction which is to be used for the New York

Needs of the Register's Office

CAUSES OF THE PRESENT CONGESTION SET FORTH

By JOHN H. J. RONNER, Register of New York County

The newspaper announcement that the new Hall of Records will not be ready for occupancy probably before next fall is regrettable if true. The present temporary quarters in an office building on Nassau st are not only unsuitable and inadequate, but, not being fireproof, the possibility of destruction of the records, wholly or partly, remains a disturbing consideration. The building in which the Register is now is one of the ordinary type of office buildings and was not designed for a place of custody for valuable public records. The sooner, therefore, the new building is offered for the actual use it was designed the better. It is proposed to have some of the city departments quartered in the new Hall of Records. There should be no objection to this, provided that the space proposed to be assigned to the Register's Office is not reduced. The fact, perhaps, that the Register's Office has no connection directly or indirectly with other branches of the local government and that the functions of the Register are not of a character to invite the publicity given to the administrative departments of the city may account for the seeming unimportance attached to the office hitherto.

Nowhere throughout the world is real estate activity so great as in the city of New York, and nowhere is so much at stake in a monetary sense. Hence it would appear that the office provided for the recording of deeds, mortgages and other papers affecting real estate transactions and for the preservation of such records should be deemed as essentially important as any office that is a part of the municipal administration. I understand that in former years a popular impression existed that the administration of the office was conducted in a happy-go-lucky style, with no more attention being paid to it than was deemed absolutely necessary. This impression no doubt dated back to the time the fee system was in force, when many thought that the principal business of the Register was to collect all the fees possible for himself regardless of any other consideration. As time passed the administration of the office under the present salary system undoubtedly improved. The good features I found on taking office have been preserved and others have been introduced, with the result that the Register's Office is now as perfect perhaps as it is possible to make it with its cramped quarters and small force employed. Some notable abuses that existed, not in the office, but in connection with it, have been abolished. For instance, it was practically an every-day occurrence to subpoena libers before one court, or another, before a referee or before some street-opening commission. They were removed, often by the wagon load, on a subpoena duces tecum, to the inconvenience of the business of the office itself and to the annoyance of those engaged in searching. It required the almost continuous services of two men to carry those volumes of records about the city, under subpoena, and it certainly did the bound volumes no good to have them carried hither and thither promiscuously, and, very often, as it developed, unnecessarily. After a thorough investigation, it seemed that the whole subpoenaing of records was an abuse that called for correction. I accordingly had an act introduced at the last session of the Legislature, which is Chapter 84 of the Laws of 1904, and which compels any person seeking the production of a record of the Register's Office in evidence to procure an order for that purpose from the Supreme Court. It is notable that since the passage of that law became generally known orders for libers to be produced in evidence have been few and far between. Subpoenas are still presented, but when the servers find that an order of a judge, made in court, and not a subpoena, is necessary, they conclude in nine cases out of ten that they "can get along without the records." Certified copies serve practically every purpose, and the fees received therefor help swell the receipts of the office.

It was the custom formerly for the assistant who received papers for record to take the fees at the same time he received papers. It was my opinion that the person to whom papers were presented for record should not be required to handle money, and I, accordingly, with the approval of the Civil Service authorities, had a position of cashier provided for, and now the Register's representative, whether he be Deputy, Assistant Deputy, or Chief Clerk, who receives papers for record, has his mind more concentrated upon their proper execution and acknowledgment than he could were the former practice continued.

For the first time, I believe, in the history of the office, the important positions of Deputy, Assistant Deputy Chief Clerk and Satisfaction Clerk are held by lawyers, and I find the result very satisfactory. The appointments are practically the only appointments of importance I have made in the office. I removed some persons who performed very little service and whom I could not find practicable at all to use in the office to advantage. It was not for the mere sake of reduction that I made the removals, but simply because I deemed the removals essential for the good of the service and in the interest of the public. As a matter of fact I could employ to advantage a greater force than I have, but the Board of Estimate will have to make the necessary provision for salaries in the first place. This calls to mind the recent situation in this office, so well described in your issue of Nov. 5 last, when the work of the folio writers—the men who typewrite the records in the libers—was stopped because I had no more money to pay them. This statement in one sense is paradoxical, because with every paper presented for record the fee prescribed by law is paid, which was more than double in each instance the statutory fee per 100 words to be paid to the folio writers. The current receipts of the office under the law have to be handed over to the City Chamberlain, and I cannot draw against any account except the regular appropriation made in advance the preceding year. The unusual real estate activity this year in New York County, so clearly shown in your article referred to, caused the fund provided for by the Board of Estimate for the use of this office to be absorbed before the fall season had fully set in. After persistent effort I have been enabled to secure a transfer of funds large enough, perhaps, to last for the balance of this year, but, nevertheless, the fact remains that at a most critical period the Register's Office was almost suspended in operation as far as actual recording was concerned, because the Register had no funds. A few men who were salaried typewriters on other work were drafted into places of the suspended force temporarily, and if I had not had their services not a wheel would be turned, so to speak, as far as making records of real estate transactions was concerned. I have to say for the city authorities—the Mayor, the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate—that as soon as they realized the condition mentioned they showed a readiness to do all that was possible to meet the situation. At one time it looked as if there would be no funds forthcoming and that the Register's Office was doomed to lie two months in idleness, while the real estate market was unprecedentedly active. The Finance Department, however, found some moneys that could be transferred, and in consequence the office is now in full operation again.

What happened suggests, I think, the question of the passage of an act that would make some secure provision for such a contingency in the future. The restrictions of the charter now as to the appropriation of money are doubtless beyond criticism, speaking generally, but in any office where the fees paid cover the actual cost of recording and bring as much more at least to the county, it seems that some provision could be made that would not permit such a crisis to arrive as recently occurred in the Register's Office. Perhaps if the Board of Estimate were more liberal in the future in making appropriations such an emergency would not be liable to happen.

Practically speaking, the office force is no larger now than it was twenty years ago. Additional clerks, readers and examiners are badly needed. The Record and Guide in its present enlarged size, gradually reached, reflects in a measure the natural increase of business in the Register's Office. Your weekly recital of recorded conveyances and other instruments of record, as well as your report of filed chattel mortgages, conditional bills of sale and bills of sale growing more numerous from year to year, furnish good documentary evidence of the increase of this kind of public business. Those conversant with real estate affairs need hardly be reminded that up to a comparatively recent period there was no conveyancing in the county of New York worth speaking of outside Manhattan Island. During the last decade, however, a new city in itself, as it might be called, has grown with rapid strides east and north of the Harlem River. Your issue of Nov. 26 showed, for instance, that there were only nine conveyances less in the Bronx for the week ending Nov. 23d than there were in the Borough of Manhattan for the corresponding period of last year, viz, 178 in the Bronx and 187 in Manhattan. For this year, taking the same week, the conveyances in Manhattan numbered 243 and the Bronx 178. It is significant that the total

The Story of Washington Heights

AN EXPERT'S EXPLANATIONS OF A REMARKABLE LAND BOOM

By CHARLES GRIFFITH MOSES

I ONCE heard the late Col. John R. Fellows prove by logical deduction that the site of the Garden of Eden was on Washington Heights. He said the Creator, after finishing his labors in bringing into existence the new world, cast about to select the fairest spot for human habitation. Now every one here will concede that America is the most beautiful land on earth, and in all America that New York is the most beautiful city, and the fairest part of New York is Washington Heights. Hence, here must have been located the Garden of Eden.

Now let us briefly outline what part of New York contained this garden spot. Washington Heights, as it is known to-day, is composed of the old settlements of Carmansville, Fort Washington and Inwood; in other words, all the land on Manhattan Island north and west of Manhattanville and Harlem; that is to say; all that part of the Island of Manhattan north of about 135th street and west of 8th avenue.

This portion of the city is really a ridge, or more properly a series of ridges running north and south and sloping to the east and west to the Harlem and Hudson rivers. For the most part the land on both sides of the heights falls more or less precipitously towards its boundary rivers, and the city authorities and public spirited citizens in their far-seeing wisdom have not been slow to take advantage of the natural physical conditions and have carried out the work planned by nature in incorporating most of this land into a most beautiful park system.

The northerly and easterly part of the island known in real estate parlance as the "Dyckman section," lies for the most part low and level somewhat similar to the natural conditions existent in the greater part of Harlem. Here, too, the powers that be have recognized the physical advantages of the land and the U. S. Government has spent millions of dollars in completing a ship canal connecting the Hudson river with the Long Island sound, in anticipation of this section being the commercial center of upper New York.

As New York began to grow from a village to a city, and the old-time burghers and merchants began to amass fortunes and desired to build for themselves country places in the suburbs, the natural northward tendency never since discontinued, commenced. It was these pioneers who were the original landowners and residents of Washington Heights, and for a long period, ending about sixty or seventy years ago, the Heights was chiefly peopled by them and an occasional farmer who found his market a half a day's journey to the south.

THE OLD LAND OWNERS.

Among the principal landowners I have just referred to, we find such names as Alexander Hamilton, whose estate, known as Hamilton Grange, was located between 141st street and 145th street, Amsterdam and St. Nicholas avenues. The original house is still standing, although moved a few hundred feet from the spot on which it was built. I can well remember that where now stand blocks of elevator apartments and spacious residences, where streets and avenues hum with life and activity, where probably thousands of people live and do business, the sloping lawns and towering trees surrounded the old mansion. In fact, some of the thirteen celebrated trees purported to have been planted by Alexander Hamilton himself, still stand on their grassy knoll. South of the Grange was the old Peutz place, the greater part of which was taken by the city for St. Nicholas Park and the College of the City of New York and another part of which has been occupied for years by the Convent of the Sacred Heart.

North of the Grange the next large holdings were those of the Bradhursts and Fields. North of the Fields property came the Maunsell and Van Renssellaer lands, and then the Roger Morris, afterwards the Stephen Jumel holdings with the famous house known as the Jumel mansion overlooking the valley of the Harlem, still standing.

West of the Jumel land we find the properties of Richard Carman, John J. Audubon, the great naturalist; Shepperd Knapp, Mayor Kingsland, Dennis Harris, and others.

North of these, and of a somewhat later period, we find the estate of John Haven, Chas. O'Conor, James Gordon Bennett, St. John Hayes, Wm. B. Isham, and a few more.

North of Fort George and on the low lands extending from Sherman creek to Spuyten Duyvel and Kingsbridge were the farms of Jacobus Dyckman, John Nagle and Blaze Moor.

The village in which all the residents of these country places did their shopping and marketing was old Carmansville, which rambled along both sides of what is now Amsterdam avenue, from 152d to 159th streets.

Most of these estates remained intact or at least were divided into smaller holdings, each in itself containing a large tract of land until, say, about fifty years ago, when Dennis Harris built a large sugar refinery on the Hudson river at about 162d street, and there being a big demand for small houses for the people who worked there, Shepperd Knapp sold single lots to these employees on the northerly part of his estate and opened a street for the benefit of his grantees north of what is now 165th street.

This street was called Croton street, and some of the frame houses built then are still standing and occupied in several cases by the original owner or his descendants.

Other landowners followed Mr. Knapp's example, and soon quite a few houses began to make their appearance. But building at this time, and, in fact, up to about 1880, was of a suburban or at least semi-suburban nature. The two great developers of this modern metropolis had not appeared on the scene. By the two great developers I mean the much maligned building-loan man and the speculative builder.

WHITE FRAME HOUSES WITH GREEN SHUTTERS.

People who wanted to live on Washington Heights before 1880, either had to buy an old house or buy lots and build for themselves. My memory of Washington Heights goes back to that year, and I can remember that most of the streets looked like country lanes lined with detached houses, for the most part frame, and painted white with green shutters. Of course the grand boulevard (Broadway) was completed about that time as far north as 155th street; but that was a dismal waste, with scarcely a house on it except the old Soldiers' Home at 151st street, built on the site of the Hickson Field mansion and now enlarged, and new buildings added and used as an orphan asylum and a few scattered dwellings of the old-fashioned variety.

Amsterdam avenue, from 152d street (the southerly end of the village) south to Manhattanville was a rocky, hilly roadway, and though supposed to be regulated and graded, the driveway was overgrown with high weeds and grass, and so full of enormous rocks and boulders that it was hardly ever used. The old stone gate houses of the old Croton Aqueduct stood in the middle of the street, and this added to the danger of using the roadway especially at night. The main traveled highway was the old road known as the Bloomingdale road, and further north as the Kingsbridge road, now St. Nicholas avenue.

To be sure, before the year 1880, in fact, in the later '60's and '70's, the real estate speculators appeared on the scene. And such big holdings as the Dyckman and Carman tracts were cut up into lots and sold at auction. But it was not until the eighty's that the builder appeared to take a hand in the development of the Heights and with the cutting up and selling of the Jumel and Hamilton lands, building began in earnest. As the builder began improving the vacant land and finding a ready market for his finished product, the demand for streets to be opened was so great that in a period roughly estimated at ten years, from 1885 to 1895, most of the street from 135th street north to 185th street were opened, regulated, graded and sewered. The first builders confined their attention to private homes, mostly small ones, with the exception of those on Convent avenue, on the Hamilton Grange, houses built to sell for from $10,000 to $15,000.

It was not long before flats followed in the wake of the private houses, and I well remember the old-time residents prophesying dire failure for this kind of building. No one will go up to the country to live in a tenement house, they said, and the building of flats will ruin the Heights. But the flats were a success from the start, and land values until then slowly climbing upwards began to move in jumps of thousands instead of hundreds.

LOT VALUES THEN AND NOW.

A few comparisons in lot values, it seems to me, would not be amiss here. Lots that sold at the Jumel auction sale in 1882 for two or three hundred dollars, have since been sold for seven or eight thousand; some that sold for twelve or thirteen hundred dollars, have been sold for $16,000 to $18,000 and even more. Lots that sold at the Field sale in 1892 (I think) for $1,500 to $1,800, have since sold for $10,000 to $12,000. Lots in the Dyckman tract sold at the original sale in 1868 for $400 or $500, and later in the late seventies and early eighties for $700 or $800, now sell for $3,000 or $4,000.

Probably the most significant of all the earlier auction sales were those of the Jumel estate, the first in 1880 and the second in 1882. These sales opened up a large territory covering the greater part of the land bounded by 158th and 174th streets, the Harlem river and the Kingsbridge road. The elevated road was completed to 155th street in 1880, and people then for the first time were able to get to the northern part of the city with considerable ease. It was this fact that caused the investors and prospective house builders to attend these first sales in large numbers and to bid eagerly for the lots then sold. Of course the prices paid at that time seem ridiculously small to us now, but at the time the auction was considered by experts to have been a brilliant success, and there were many even of a skeptical turn of mind who feared that many of the buyers had allowed enthusiam to run away with good judgment.

Immediately following these sales came a healthy building activity caused by the improvement of many of the lots sold. It may be noted here, however, as indicative of how the real estate business has changed in the last few years, that very little of this building was of a speculative nature; although here the speculative builder got his first foothold on the Heights, and with this as an entering wedge started the vast improvements which have been continuing up to the present time. Other and later auction sales which had an influence in the development of the Heights were the Haggerty sale and the sale of the large Morton Bliss property, consisting of a tract of 411 lots located on Amsterdam, Audubon, St. Nicholas and Wadsworth avenues and Broadway and 178th to 182d streets. This was probably the most successful sale of vacant land ever held in New York. It may seem strange to us now to remember that the success of the sale was due to the present rapid transit system, as it was announced from the stand that a commission had been appointed to consider the construction of a subway reaching to Washington Heights. Although but nine years had elapsed since the last Jumel sale, the lots brought on an average almost five times as much as they had brought at the former sales.

Among the many features that have helped to make Washington Heights attractive to those interested in real estate, has been the wise and liberal treatment accorded to this part of the island by the authorities in acquisition of land for park purposes. Probably no city in the world has a better park system than New York, and Washington Heights has certainly received its due in this respect. * * * * It must not be imagined for one moment that all these vast improvements, these parks, these viaducts, these sewered and paved streets, intelligently planned and carried cut to suit the special needs and physical conditions of this territory, came of themselves and without effort. Most of these improvements were started by the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, a small but enthusiastic body of residents and property owners banded together for the benefit of the public.

(The remainder of Mr. Moses' paper, which treats of the present boom and future prospects, will be continued next week.)

Needs of the Register's Office.

number of new buildings in the Bronx for the present year, up to Nov. 25th last, was 1,487 as against 1,249 in Manhattan.

An idea of what the Register's Office is now doing may be gathered from the single fact that the receipts of the office for the month of November, this year, were about $5,000 more than for the corresponding month of last year. The total receipts for last year were $119,739.73, as against a total appropriation of $176,110. This year the estimated receipts will be $155,000, against a similar appropriation; thus, for the first time in its history making the office practically self-supporting, for the reason that the difference between the estimated receipts and appropriation, substantially speaking, is spent in the "Bureau for the Preservation of Public Records" and for other purposes that cannot be charged properly to the administration of the office.

For next year an extra appropriation under the salary account has been made of only $10,000, which, if real estate continues as active as it has been, will not be even sufficient to pay the increased earnings of the folio writers. This situation, of course, militates against any addition to the force. The employees who read and compare the records work now under high tension, and a relief of that situation would be welcome for many reasons. The tickler and other clerks who skeleton the records for immediate search are employed frequently for hours without extra compensation after the regular closing time. If this department were to close promptly at 4 o'clock, the regular day limit for recording, the business of the office would simply be behind twenty-four hours and much dissatisfaction and confusion would no doubt ensue. Nothing, however, is left over for the morrow, but the current day's work, so far as it can be, is finished on that day.

—The Architectural School at Columbia University is to be reorganized in accordance with the atelier system in vogue in Paris. This change has been under consideration for some years, and at last Prof. A. D. F. Hamlin has been authorized to carry it out. It is an experiment which will be watched with great interest, for it will be the first serious attempt in an American school to follow the French system. It will involve putting a considerable responsibility on the student, and for this reason the School of Architecture has been raised to the rank of an advanced department, to which only those will be admitted who have studied not less than two years in a college satisfactory to the Columbia authorities.

The Library Stackwork.

Library has originated with me. I never took out a patent for the construction, and any one has a right to use it. The reason we were thrown down is, probably, that Mr. Snead has been able to make those who have the authority to award the contract believe that his is the only concern that knows how to do the work; but, if the authorities had made a few inquiries they would soon have found out that this is not the case, and it is rather unusual that the lowest bidder is not given a chance to show what he is able to do. I feared that on account of Mr. Snead's activity the contract might be awarded without the lower bidders having even a chance to show that they were not only able, but had a right to do the work, and, before the contract was awarded I called Comptroller Grout's attention to the fact that we were the lowest bidders for the book-stack work, but that we feared an attempt would be made to give the contract to a higher bidder, and I asked, therefore, to be granted a personal hearing before the contract was awarded, which was promised. I also called on Borough President Littleton and asked him the same as I asked Comptroller Grout, and he assured me that I would have a personal hearing before the contract was awarded.

"When the contract was awarded I was in St. Louis, as one of the Committee of One Hundred, appointed by Borough President Littleton to represent Brooklyn on 'Brooklyn Day' at the Exposition, and I was, therefore, unable to be present when the contract was awarded, and so did not have the hearing promised me by Comptroller Grout and Borough President Littleton; I must, therefore, ask them to grant that hearing so that I can show we are both able and have a right to do this library work. The difference between our estimate, which is the lowest, and Snead's estimate, is enormous; our bid is $707,000, and the contract was awarded to Snead for $916,000, and both estimates are for exactly the same work in every particular."

The action of the Commissioners in not awarding the contract to the lowest bidder, especially as in this case it was a firm of the very highest standing and of notable experience in that class of work, has caused great surprise in building circles.

COMMISSIONER CRAIN ORDERS 200 PROPERTY-OWNERS TO COMPLY WITH THE LAW REGARDING SCHOOL SINKS.—SEVERAL THOUSAND ORDERS MORE TO COME.

The Court of Appeals, having sustained the constitutionality of the law, Commissioner Crain has begun the enforcement of the provisions for the removal of school sinks from tenement-house property throughout the city.

For some time the strict interpretation of the law was held in abeyance. This was while a test case was being tried in the courts to determine the soundness of the law. The case is now being appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court; but the tenement house department has declined to postpone the action longer.

Civic societies on the East Side are pressing for strenuous action. They say that the last possible excuse for not securing these changes are now being removed. They say that nothing short of the removal of all school sinks and the abolishing of all dark rooms will meet the popular demand. It will not be enough to issue the order, the department must see that the orders are promptly and completely fulfilled.

Commissioner Crain made the following statement for the Record & Guide:

"I propose to enforce the provision of the law relative to school sinks. These provisions have recently been pronounced constitutional by the Court of Appeals. Since that decision this department has already ordered some 200 school sinks removed. All will be ordered removed. Reasonable time will be given in each case for the doing of the necessary work, and the department will endeavor in each case to make the enforcement of the law as little onerous as possible.

—This is an era of wainscots and beamed ceilings in the construction of private dwellings in the suburban sections. Every house nowadays wants its old English effects, including a dark finish. In the last two years the manufacturers of wood finishes have brought out a great variety of color stains and a most artistic, dull finish, which can be applied to white pine, Georgia pine, chestnut, cypress or poplar, with fine effect, making these cheaper woods desirable for the interior finish of very good houses and thereby greatly reducing their cost.

Reginald P. Bolton, M. PRIVATE SALES MARKET

Joseph P. Day will sell at the New York Real Estate Salesroom 161 Broadway, on December 13, by order of the Supreme Court, the valuable property located at 29 to 35 West 32d st and 30 to 36 West 33d st. The property is ripe for improvement and deserves the careful attention of investors and speculators.

Dealing in improved property in Manhattan made a better showing this week than for a number of weeks past. In a total of two hundred and nine transactions for the borough, one hundred and twenty-two were improved parcels, ninety-six of these being flats and tenements and twenty-seven dwellings. There were seventy-six deals in vacant property, representing five hundred and fifty lots. Of these four hundred and forty-nine were on Washington Heights. In the Bronx practically all of the business done is still in vacant property, the only change being that the majority of the lots sold this week are in the section near or west of Jerome avenue, instead of in the section affected by the opening of the Subway. The total number of transactions for this borough were one hundred and eighty-nine, one hundred and sixty of which were in vacant property, representing one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine lots.

Everett M. Seixas, who for the past seven years has been with the office of Pocher & Co., has become associated with the office of M. Morgenthau, Jr., & Co., 135 Broadway, New York City and Westchester av, junction of Prospect and Longwood avs, Borough of Bronx.

CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warrantv.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that ne hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus 2:482—10. denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property. The first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before 2d figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

November 25, 26, 28, 29, 30, December 1.

RECORD AND GUIDE QUARTERLY

The annual number of the Record and Guide Quarterly contains all the legal records for the past year concerning real estate and projected buildings, arranged alphabetically and numerically, with invaluable annotations. These are supplemented by tables of important transactions, with typical prices, covering the past quarter of a century or more, accompanied by expert comments; also by a list of realty corporations created during the past two years, with officers and the enterprises in which they are engaged. The whole makes a volume of reference which no real estate man can afford to be without. It should be on every desk and in every library. Its cost is as nothing compared to its value as a time-saver. This important work can be obtained, with three quarterly numbers, for the comparatively small sum of $20. It is published by the Record and Guide, at Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey St., where interested parties may see it and have its uses explained to them. If you cannot call, drop a postal card to the Publisher, or call him up on telephone 3157 Cortlandt.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

DYCKERHOFF PORTLAND CEMENT

is made in Germany. When first introduced in the United States, some twenty-five years ago, its superior strength, correct chemical composition and absolute uniformity were quickly appreciated and placed it above all other Cements in the market. The Dyckerhoff brand maintains the original superiority;—its perfection has not been approached by any other Cement.

Vol. LXXIV. DECEMBER 10, 1904. No. 1917.

THE action of the stock market has been justifying the fears of those people who believed that it was getting top-heavy. The accumulation of stocks in the hands of speculators had evidently gone too fast and too far and the time was bound to come when a slight jar would destroy the balance. The jar came, the structure of high prices started to fall, and was only saved by quick and prompt support. The incident showed clearly both that the market was over-bought and that there were plenty of strong men behind it, who would not let it entirely collapse. There can be no doubt, however, as to its meaning. It means that prices have again reached a point at which securities are becoming "indigestible," and that a period which ought to last for several months, should supervene before any further advance is wholesome. The best thing which could happen in the meantime, would be a slowly, sagging, receding market, which would afford investors an opportunity of accumulating stocks at somewhat lower prices. Then by the time the spring came the situation would have cleared up, so that it could be judged whether or not conditions justified a further advance. This is what ought to happen; and if it does not do so we shall have more days such as Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

THE speculative activity in vacant lots has suffered a substantial abatement during the past week. It is still very considerable; but it is not at all as large as it was during the several preceding weeks. About 220 sales are reported in the "Gossip" column of the present issue against over 320 last week. Thus the decrease amounts to about one-third; and in Manhattan at all events it has occurred chiefly in the sales of vacant lots. We report only 50 of such sales to-day, out of a total of 140 which is a normal proportion. On the other hand in the Bronx, out of a total of about 85, over 75 still are sales of vacant lots. The Bronx sales, that is, decreased in about the same proportion as the Manhattan sales, but the decrease did not consist as in Manhattan almost exclusively of vacant lots. It is natural that the speculative operations should subside somewhat on the approach of cold weather. In New York real estate there is always a lull early in the winter, until the time comes in February and after actively to prepare for building enterprises which start in the spring. The present lull will continue for a couple of months; and the character of the spring business will depend partly upon the changes which may take place in the labor situation between now and then. There can be no doubt that there is room for a great deal of high-class construction in the middle districts of Manhattan, and that under normal conditions such construction with its accompanying real estate operations would be undertaken. But the great majority of them will be postponed until the strike outlook is cleared up. In any event the tenement house construction is likely to break all records, and in addition there will be a certain limited revival in the construction of small dwellings. It should be added that the character of the buying has been excellent during the past week, and gives every assurance that the existing movement has not as yet begun to run its course.

THE Tile Layers' Union has succumbed during the past week; and its members have individually signed the arbitration agreement. This was one of the strongest and the closest of the unions locked out by the Employers' Association; but its ability to put a stiff resistance was weakened by the fact that its members were employed chiefly upon the more expensive class of work, controlled by the members of the Employers' Association; and they have not received any support, as have the carpenters and plasterers, from the great activity of cheap forms construction in the Bronx. It looks, however, as if in spite of the heavy building of tenement houses on the part of independent builders, the members of the Employers' Association would soon be in a position to secure all the labor they need from the new unions, organized under the arbitration agreement, and that building will be proceeding without any hitches within a few weeks. It may be doubted, however, whether the capitalists who have been postponing important building projects for several years, because of the strike-terror will be brought to believe that they can begin building operations with confidence as to prompt completion. The fact is patent that even though the mechanics are submitting, they are submitting in a bitter and discontented mood. Their state of mind is different from what it was in the fall of 1903. They believe—or at least many of them do—that they have tried the arbitration agreement and that it works contrary to their interests. In this belief they may or may not be mistaken; but it is necessary to reckon with their state of mind, which means that while they submit when they are obliged to submit, they will again protest as soon as they feel strong enough to protest. The formation of a new Building Trades Alliance, although still incomplete, has obviously been dictated by a widespread feeling among the unions that the situation which the Employers' Association is trying to bring about is vitally and permanently inimical to the interests of union labor. They believe, that is, not only that the arbitration agreement does not work fairly, but that the refusal of the Employers' Association to recognize an alliance of the unions is an attempt to deprive the unions of an organization as complete as that which the employers themselves have made. That there is some justice in this feeling the Record and Guide is coming to believe; and it is to be hoped that in the interest of a settlement that may be comparatively permanent, the Association will carefully review its position and see what it can do to remove this sense of grievance, which will assuredly provoke reprisals in the not-distant future. The strength of the arbitration agreement was in our opinion that it offered the unions no vital grounds for protest; but it is not as strong in this respect as it was in the fall of 1903—as Mr. Theodore Starrett so convincingly shows in another column of this issue.

THE situation as to which the city again finds itself in respect to its borrowing capacity deserves the most serious consideration on the part of the administration; and the object of such consideration should be not merely to husband the city's credit for the sake of making the most important pending improvements, but permanently to do away with the cause of these re-current crisis. The city's borrowing capacity has fallen again to about $50,000,000, which seems to be a large sum, but is really a small one, in view of coming subway, schoolhouse, dock and aqueduct construction. The improvements included under these heads are indispensable to the growth of greater New York; and if they are delayed or partially abandoned it will mean serious loss to the city's business resources and serious inconvenience to its citizens. Yet unless some effective measures to increase the borrowing capacity of the city these important improvements will necessarily be either partially abandoned or delayed. The increasing borrowing capacity obtained during the Low administration by means of a higher level of real estate valuations has been already used up to a large extent. This expedient was at best only a make-shift. It did not touch the root of the trouble, which, as former Comptroller Coler pointed out five years ago, consisted in the fact that the debt limit acts in such a way that the more property the city acquires, the less money it can borrow. Subway, dock and water supply improvements pay for themselves. They cost the taxpayer nothing. The spending of as many million of dollars as is necessary upon them not only cannot do the taxpayers any harm, but will assuredly be of enormous benefit to the property owners of the city. The city should be free to borrow as much money as it needs for such purposes. Inasmuch, however, as such freedom can be obtained only by constitutional amendment, and as an amendment to the constitution takes at least three years and a great deal of agitation to bring about, it is time that a systematic and persistent campaign was begun looking toward the creation of a body of public opinion, which will support the amendment. This is what should be done; but the difficulties of the task are so great, and the life of one administration is so short, that in all probability the matter will be postponed until the shoe begins to pinch the city a good deal harder than it now does.

The Editor undertakes to consider all literary contributions that may be sent to him, technical or otherwise, and also original designs, plans and photographs, so far as these deal with subjects which come properly within the scope of "The Real Estate Record and Builders' Guide." CONSPIRACY SHOULD CEASE

A Letter to Contractors and Trade Unionists

By THEODORE STARRETT

I had not thought when I wrote the parable of the Owner, the Clerk, the Foremen and the Workmen, published in the last number of the Record and Guide, that it might need a preacher to expound it. With the hope that those who read the story and did not quite understand may read it again, or that, perchance, those who did not read it may become interested, I wish to make an explanation of the parable. The building world is in some respects so much a thing apart from the general public and so unlike other worlds that we who are in it are apt to forget.

Every one will, of course, know who the Owner and the Workmen are, but the Clerk and the Foremen are the dismembered parts of the old "Architect and Builder's" business, the Clerk having been the draughtsman in that establishment and being now the ARCHITECT. The word "architect" means head builder or master builder, and the master builder, up to a comparatively recent day, was both architect and builder, the architect as now understood being in the old days almost as odd as would be a practicing jewelry designer to-day. The Foremen are the present race of CONTRACTORS, not builders in the sense understood by the public, but the men who do different parts of a building.

All, or almost all, of the houses of colonial days were not only built but designed by the builders, and their simple beauty is due to the fact that the builder was a carpenter, and every well-equipped carpenter was supposed and expected to have a portfolio or a few books with plates giving the classical orders analyzed to show how each member could be built up from mouldings made with a moulding plane.

Any one who will read Longfellow's "Building of the Ship" can get a beautiful picture of the worthy shipbuilder, and it is but a slight strain on the imagination to think of the shipbuilder as the master builder, who, instead of building boats, built the colonial houses of the early days in this country.

WHEN the opportunity was presented to me to write an article on the labor question I hesitated, as I knew that whoever would boldly explain the real truth would say things that would not make pleasant music in the ears of either of the participants in the fight that has been going on here in New York for the last year and a half. Now, having put my shoulder to the wheel I will not turn back, for I know that if common sense is allowed to have sway nothing but good can come from turning on the searchlight. I firmly believe that if attention can be drawn to the facts in such way that the people can be set thinking, especially the two parties at interest, the troubles would be in a fair way of ending.

If I have made statements which do not suit the kidney of the Employers' Association I claim the right to consideration just the same. I am an employer and expect to stay one. I think that when an emergency like that of the Spring of 1903 arose it was the duty of every employer to join in what was an honest, lawful combination to check the abuses resulting from the arrogance of the overfed mechanics of New York City. I am still a member of that association because I am still an employer, although the association has drifted far away from the principles on which it was founded.

Criticism of the Employers' Association I hold to be no act of treason, although I must confess that if the truth were all told the treason would be found to exist—the other way, however. The statement made by the Earl of Chatham during our war for independence that "England had no right under heaven to tax the colonists" was not treason, nor, I take it, is mine that the Employers' Association is trying for a fall and not for a peaceful settlement. But if it is treason we will try and stand the consequences.

Criticisms of my statements have been made by individuals from both sides of the fight. This is perfectly natural, and I am glad they are made. If they are unfair or sophistical so much the worse for the one who makes them. If they are fair I am glad to answer them.

I wish it to be understood that my object is, as I have said before, to get the people to thinking and to that end general statements were better than particular ones if the object can be accomplished that way.

I am enough of a builder to be ashamed when I think of some of the things that are tried, and I don't want to lift the veil any more than just enough to cure the evils. So if my statement that no one is trying to reduce wages is not quite correct I can still maintain that as a general rule wages are not reduced. If I say that unions are controlled by a perverted element, I maintain that it is sufficient for this argument if one union is controlled that way. He who reads this letter through can judge for himself whether there is not at least one union that got into pretty bad hands. All unions are tarred with the same stick, and the honest unionist must still answer for the sins of his fanatical or perverted brother, just as an an honest builder has to answer for all the trickery and scullduggery of scheming rings who put up jobs on every owner and architect that they possibly can. My statement that union men from out of town cannot get into unions in New York is not true of some trades, but it is practically true of others. It may be that the rules say that the men can come in, but when the Stork invited the Fox to his banquet the Fox didn't eat any of the olives out of the bottle the same. He afterwards ate the stork—stuffed with olives—they say, but that is another story.

But to cut this discussion short I will make this statement that I believe no man can deny: Every union is trying to get for its members everything in the way of short hours, big pay and easy work that any other union has got. These desiduates are found in the unions which have close monopolies and the methods by which the close monopolies are reached and maintained are followed by those who are less favored. Some trades are as open as the sky above us, and these trades are trying all they know to close them—to bring them to a state where they are not exposed.

To all of them I say, "More power to your elbow. Get all you can, but stop one thing, THE CONSPIRACY." If that one thing is stopped the fearful power of blackmail will cease and any man who wants to run a department store or buy out-of-town mill work can try it out in the courts if he finds he is balked.

I hope I have made it clear—this spirt of emulation among the unions, for it is necessary to understand this before I tackle one instance of a common practice among the "closed" unions, which I shall cite as an example of what can and will happen with all of the unions if the conspicacy is allowed to continue.

When my company joined the Building Trades Employers' Association it was distinctly promised that this conspiracy would be abandoned altogether. It was abandoned for the time but after the unions "were forced to swallow whole" the "famous plan of arbitration" in 1903 the empolyers, flushed with their victory, started to revamp all the old subordinate associations, and it is under cover of these sub-associations that the conspiracy flourishes.

But it makes no difference whether we are in or whether we are out, whether it is to be a department store or not, whether out-of-town trim is to be used or not. It does not make any difference whether it is the owner, the contractor, or the mechanics that stand the loss. Only one thing has got to be done, and after I cite a case that anyone could have read about in the newspapers the reader, as I believe, will be in a position to say what that thing is himself.

I will quote without name from the New York Sun, of October 15th, an account of some of the testimony in the Weinseimer case. Any one who wants to read the names can find them on page 5, col. 1.

"———, President of the Employing———Association, was called next. He wasn't long on the stand, however. Mr. Raines tried to get from him that the plumbers quit on the Chatsworth because of a grievance of the carpenters working on the building, but Judge Newburger ruled out the questions on Mr. Rand's objections. The only testimony of importance from Mr.——— was the admittance of a letter from him to Weinseimer notifying the latter that ———, the plumber who had the contract on the Chatsworth, was not a member of the Masters' Association, but had union men at work on the job, a violation of the agreement between the employers' association and the union, which Weinseimer was asked to look into."

I will then ask the reader to recall what Weinseimer did. He knew he was sent by the Employing———Association on an unlawful errand, and instead of inflicting a loss on the contractor, the magnitude of which can only be judged from the alternative which the contractor choose—instead of robbing him directly, Weinseimer took ————'s money and is now in the penitentiary for it.

When I ask why the men who sent Weinseimer out on his errand of mercy (?) are not sent to the penitentiary, too, I know that I am laying myself open to reprisals from the gang that used Weinseimer, but if they attempt them I will appeal if necessary (and I don't believe it will be necessary) to the members of the plumbers' union themselves. I say now as I have always said that the mechanics who are cuckolded by these perverted labor leaders are the ones who like it the least. Their hearts, I believe, are in the right place, and they will not let anybody suffer for speaking the truth and pointing out the treacherous pitfalls that lies in the path of the unwary.

I have said that I want to start the people thinking. I really and truly believe that the very fellows who are ringleaders in this game "know not what they do," but they do know that the only way they have to "put up jobs" successfully is to use a Weinseimer on a boss who tries to break the rules, and the withering blight that strikes the business of him who falls under the ban is enough to cause the boldest man to turn pale and tremble.

The whole public sees the effects. The thing is to see and know the cause.

Stop and think, good people, cudgel your brains and tell if you do not begin to see some kind of light. I tell you it is the light of day that you see, the bright sunlight.

I will revert for a moment to the parable that appeared in my former letter. I will recall to the reader's mind that it was the foremen who appealed to the men to help them out of a hole. The foremen it will be remembered started the illegal practice. Then I will recall to the reader to the words of the Judge in which he said that the employer who attempted to help himself out of the trouble by the aid of his workmen was like a man who would employ a lot of smugglers to bring his goods across the border. The goods being brought in, of course the employer could not recover them except by the aid of double-dyed rascals from among the smugglers who stole the goods and brought them back to the employer. Such a double-dyed rascal is a Weinseimer. He is the tool of the conspiracy.

It may cure things to take away the tool, but it is better to cure them by punishing the rascals or stopping the practice of the rascals who use the tools. THE CONSPIRACY MUST GO. It should be a penitentiary offense to make an agreement that makes possible a conspiracy—a thing which on the surface is so innocent but which in its actual workings is so vicious. If the employers will not stop the practice the rank and file of the mechanics should and they will. They are the direct sufferers. The rest suffer indirectly.

Every union should make for the protection of its individual members an iron-bound oath to stop utterly and forever the practice of making monopolistic agreements and to work for any honest man that will pay the wages and observe the working rules. Then there will be no chance for contractors to do what the Brotherhood of Carpenters charges—bribe delegates,—use Weinseimers to pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

* * * * * *

One of the greatest problems of democratic government arises out of the fact that freedom is in constant danger of becoming license, and license shows itself in disregard of the rights of others, whether they be individual rights or class rights. A despotic hand must sometimes be used to restrain this license right here in this Land of the Free. License shows itself in either of two ways—the attempt to take from others the things that belong to them or the attempt to withhold from others the things that we may be enjoying, but to which others have an equal right with ourselves.

Lord help the fellow that has not what he has a right to, but Devil take the man that has what belongs equally to others and wont give it up. To the latter class belong the employers and the trade-unionists of New York City—both blind to what even the school children are finding out.

No one can monopolize a good thing unless he has a patent on it or can keep others from finding it out. If any part of a country becomes prosperous it is the natural instinct of the people who are on the spot to try to monopolize all the good things, but in these United States of America it is the legal right of any citizen who can raise the necessary car fare to go to the scene of prosperity and participate in it.

The natural instinct of every man is to strive for the best he can get, and it is a perfectly legitimate instinct. It is a legitimate instinct for any trade union to try to save the pie for its own men, but if some of the unions have too much pie and others not enough the thing will work itself out. General Grant said that the best way to get rid of a bad law was to enforce it, and if this infernal conspiracy business is stopped the way is clear for a bad law to enforce itself out of the statutes.

The public knows all about the unions and about the high wages they get. The public does not know about the hardships of precarious employment which counteract the high wages, but when it knows it will be charitable.

When all unions are united for mutual benefit two things will happen. One is that they cannot play hog with each other and the other is that the very fact of their being united will compel the growth of a restraining power in a united employers' association, which will be an "Open Shop" where every employer gets a square deal. This open shop employers' association will conduct its affairs in accordance with the Constitution of the United States. There will be no more hypocritical by-laws which say: "There is no intention nor shall there be any action to control or in any way deal with prices or restrict competition," while all the time subordinate associations, wheels within the wheel, deliberately break another by-law of the same association which says that employers shall have the right to hire any trade they wish "provided they join the employers' association of that trade" by keeping out employers—large employers in their trade, too—who from the very nature of things CANNOT BE PARTIES TO THEIR CONSPIRACY.

* * * * * *

The statement of the workmen and the statement of the employers have each of them reference to the bete noir of each association. The union fears the competition of what Mr. Featherstone and Mr. Judge call the more "fortunate" men of the small town. That is something that will have to right itself, and it will. The employers fear the department store. It is the octopus that will eat them all up. The octopus is no octopus but is a benefactor—like Commodore Vandebilt, a boatman who started in business with $600 that his wife had saved up while running a country hotel—like a Vanderbilt who took one of the chains of railroads that lead to Chicago and consolidated it, so that to-day you can traverse the thousand miles between here and there in twenty hours. This ruthless octopus swallowed the seven or eight different jerk-water railroads that once formed the links in the highway. Each road had at its terminus a transfer point where there were lots of industries that depended on the trains stopping and unloading their passengers. The hotel man and all the rest of the small tradesmen whom the passenger was compelled to patronize are dead and gone, and the journey no longer takes a week. The passenger, however, is not the only man who is benefited by this change. The whole country is benefited, including the railroad itself.

For the benefit of our friends who would attempt to keep thirty to forty moribund institutions alive I will say that the department store of the building business has secured a right of way for the whole distance between the two terminals and the last connecting link has been laid. It is true that part of the track needs ballasting, not to mention that it is only doubled for a few miles at each terminal, but trains are running very close to a schedule which consumes about one-third of the time that formerly was necessary, and any miscreant who dynamites a culvert or burns a bridge will be taken care of by the law. The road is an absolute accomplished fact, built in answer to the pressure of a public demand.

Some day a new Utopia may come when a thousand men, no matter what their trade, will work for a single independent boss whose business will be so steady and so permanent that the precarious job—the bane of the high-waged mechanic—will be a thing of the past, as it is in other industries, and the question of jurisdiction between one trade and another will cease to bother us and it will be just as absurd for the plumbers to strike because the steamfitters are doing water-piping work, as it would be for one bricklayer to attempt to drive another bricklayer off the wall because he wants to do all the work himself.

In conclusion I wish to say to any builder who may object to this emphatic language that I am a builder myself from choice, not necessity. I regard the building business with the love of an enthusiast and think it is worth running some risk to see it elevated.

But any man who thinks the shoe fits can wear it.

—The plan originally given out by the Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument Association provided for an open competition among architects and sculptors for the honor of designing the monument which it is intended to erect in Fort Green Park, Brooklyn, to the prison ship martyrs of the American Revolution. But the committee has since decided to limit this competition to three firms of architects. Against this exclusion the architectural profession of Brooklyn is raising its voice in protest, and the Brooklyn Chapter of the American Institute of Architects has formally requested the committee to reconsider its action and make the competition an open one.

A Family of Constructors.

(See Illustration.)

Whether the builder, like the poet, is born and not made, is a question that might interest those who have noted the fact that the management of two of the greatest building construction companies in this country is now in the hands of a family ot brothers whose individual achievements in their chosen line have attracted a great deal of attention in the last few years. From the oldest, still under 40, to the youngest, not yet 27—and he looks nearer 20—each has been mixed up in some "stunt" or other since his first appearance on the scene of action.

That their peculiar ability is inherited might be concluded from the fact that their grandfather, William Aiken Starrett, was one of the best and best known builders in Western Pennsylvania in the late '40's and early '50's, up to the time of his death. He built many churches in the country surrounding Pittsburg, and one of his works was the Pittsburg court house, destroyed by fire about the middle of the last century. Their father, though a Presbyterian, minister, was an amateur architect, having designed and built his own church in Lawrence, Kansas, where he went to live during the war, and where after the war all the family were born.

But training, long and arduous, must have been added, as indeed it was. Theodore Starrett, the oldest brother, entered the office of Burnham & Root, the architects who afterwards designed the Chicago World's Fair, and although the draughtsmen who worked with him in those days said he was more of an artist than an engineer, his six years' training in that office led him very quickly into the constructive end of the business, and he became eventually engineer for the firm in the days of the beginnings of steel skeleton construction. So it may be truly said of him that he has grown up with the business of modern construction.

During the last year of his connection with Burnham & Root's office he became acquainted with George A. Fuller, who was at the time in his prime, and a warm friendship sprang up between them. Unlike the prophet, Theodore Starrett had as a youth some honor in his own country, as is evidenced by the fact that his first beginnings consisted of work for the neighbors in the Hyde Park section of Chicago. One of them was going to build a large hotel and he commissioned young Starrett, then 22 years of age, to make the plans. Two years later, when the World's Fair was coming on, it became a question of how to get an extensive addition to this hotel finished quickly. Mr. Fuller's aid was enlisted and the firm of Theodore Starrett & George A. Fuller was employed to construct the building, which it did with signal success.

After the completion of the hotel, the firm of Starrett & Fuller was dissolved and the oldest of the Starrett brothers conducted his own business, first alone and then in partnership with George Whitney, a man somewhat older than himself, since deceased, whose failing health compelled the dissolution of the company after two years of very creditable business.

Theodore Starrett continued the business of constructing buildings, and the works with which he has been connected as the managing brain are scattered in almost every big city from Chicago and Milwaukee on the west to St. Louis and Washington on the south, and Buffalo and Boston on the north.

Paul Starrett, the second brother, entered Mr. Burnham's employ at the time that his older brother was leaving. He started to work for nothing, but it wasn't long before he got a raise, and his ability carried him right up to the top in the army of draughtsmen and engineers employed in the enormous practice of Mr. Burnham. He left Mr. Burnham in 1898 and entered the building business as superintendent, from which position he has worked up to the presidency of his company. He has directed the construction of some of the greatest buildings in Chicago, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Philadelphia and New York.

Ralph Starrett, the third brother, is not directly one of Burnham's boys, but his experience as a builder, pure and simple, is longer than Paul's, he having joined his oldest brother in 1890. His experience is wide, covering a dozen cities and all classes of buildings from railroad shops to theaters and skyscrapers. Ralph Starrett has been said to be one of the most expert builders in the United States. With a brain quick to solve new problems and a memory which has forgotten nothing that his wide experience has ever brought before his ken, he is indeed well equipped. Ralph Starrett is the man who was employed to represent the Continental Trust Company of Baltimore in the adjustment of their fire loss of last February, and insurance experts say that he has established an entirely new method of insurance adjustment in connection with steel skeleton construction in this country.

Goldwin Starrett, the fourth brother, is another graduate of Mr. Burnham's office, he having entered there on leaving college in 1894. A four-year's connection there gave him a most intimate knowledge of the growing refinements and intricacies of modern fireproof construction, especially in the engineering departments. There is no part of a building, especially in relation to its heating plant or its electric generating plant and the intricate system of arteries, veins and nerves that make a great building a thing of life that he is not familiar with. He is now entirely occupied with the granite business, with which the brothers have an alliance, and is engaged on the work for the great new terminal station which is now building at Washington.

William Aiken Starret, the third of the name, is a youth with a record—if ever there was one. The Broadway Chambers in New York City is the first building of which he ever had complete charge as a superintendent, and though he was only 22 years of age when it was built, he acquitted himself with great credit. He was the superintendent in charge of the 16-story building at the corner of Cedar and William streets, which still stands as the undisputed "record-holder" for quick construction, the skeleton having been erected in twenty-five days, but what is more wonderful, the work of enclosing, from the time of starting to set the cast bases in the cellar, being only two months. Many other buildings have been handled by him with equal credit, and he is now in charge of the construction of the work on the great station at Washington.

As a man of national prominence in the building world in Washington, who has charge of great operations for the government, said in talking with the writer the other day: "The breed of builders is changing. Men with engineering and architectural training are required, and they are coming to the front."

The translation or transference of the architect's ideas from paper to the everlasting stone and brick and steel requires people who understand the technique of architecture.

The brick or stone building with wooden joists and partitions and with fireplaces and a furnace for heating it and a simple tank to store water for the plumbing fixtures is about as much like a modern steel skeleton building as a canal boat is like an ocean liner, but a man who has spent his life building canal boats would have very little claim to the knowledge of how to build an ocean liner.

And so the art of building is becoming specialized, and owners and architects are growing more and more to realize that the best way to avoid confusion and loss in the construction of their great buildings is to employ specialists to do the work.

"One Year of Arbitration."

AN ANSWER TO SAMUEL B. DONNELLY.

By Geo. J. Bohnen, of the Brotherhood of Carpenters.

We agree with the Record and Guide when in its edition of December 3d, 1904, it calls attention to the discussion of the labor situation in the building trades, and says: "It is done because of a conviction that something is radically wrong in the relations between the Employers' Associations and the unions," and its endeavors to secure a permanent and satisfactory settlement. And for this reason we welcome the opportunity afforded us, to get our side of the story fairly before the building public; an opportunity denied us in every other channel, in the hope that it will help to bring about the condition sought to be established, as indicated above. The labor side of this controversy has nothing to conceal from the building public, and believes that the opportunity of a fair hearing, fair consideration and an unbiased and impartial judgment, will vindicate their position fully.

With this in mind, we intend to correct a few of the misleading statements made by Mr. Donnelly.

And at the outset, let us take issue with the statement made, "that those unions that signed the arbitration plan simply for the reason of expediency, are the majority of the organizations now locked out." We concede precedence to no organization of employers in the recognition of the principle of fair arbitration, nor in efforts to establish same. This, of course, does not mean compulsory arbitration.

This is apparent from the following correspondence:

Marc Eidlitz & Son, Builders, 489 Fifth Ave.

New York, October 19, 1898.

D. F. Featherston, Esq.

Dear Sir:—I have your communication from the District Council of the United Carpenters and Joiners of America, in which you signify willingness to adhere to the question of a Court of Arbitration. I am waiting for the replies from the other bodies, and congratulate the Brotherhood that they are amongst the leading ones to signify their willingness to enter into an agreement of this kind with the employers of the building industry. Yours truly, (Signed) OTTO M. EIDLITZ.

Again, the following suggestions were made to the Master Carpenters' Association in writing through one of our business agents, but received no consideration:

New York City, June 26, 1900.

Dear Sir:—In the course of conversation with you several days ago, I expressed some views on the matter of conference and agreements to be made by the employers and the journeymen. You thought so favorably of some of the suggestions that you requested me to give them to you in writing as you would be able to have some conversation with other employers on the matter.

The following are some ideas which suggest themselves as practicable, if not necessary, for the formation of a permanent committee on conference:

First suggestion. A permanent committee is necessary, in order that there may be a yearly agreement made that will regulate the hours and wages and to select an arbitration committee to adjust any grievance that may arise between the members of the Employers' Association and the journeymen.

Second suggestion. That the agreement include that there shall not be any lockout on the part of the employers, or strike against any member of the Master Carpenters by the members of the Journeymen's Union or Association until the grievance has been referred to an arbitration board.

Third suggestion. That a permanent arbitration board of four (4) members from each, the Master Carpenters' Association and the Journeymen's Union, making eight (8) in all, to whom all grievances shall be referred for settlement. But should they fail to come to an agreement, the question or questions, the grievance or grievances shall be referred to a committee of six (6), three (3) of whom shall be selected from the United Building Trades who are not master carpenters, and three (3) from the central body of building trades unions not carpenters, who shall take all evidence that is germaine to the subject, and their decision shall be final and binding upon both parties to the grievance or question under dispute. Most sincerely yours,

Further the agreement entered into between the Brotherhood of Carpenters and the Interior Decorators in May, 1903, before the general arbitration plan was promulgated, contained an arbitration clause. Same is true of agreements made with individual employers not members of that association, since the lockout.

The foregoing will be sufficient to establish the point.

The first sentence of Mr. Donnelly's statement: "The first section of the arbitration plan announced by the Building Trades Employers' Association in June, 1903"—admits that the plan is not mutual nor reciprocal, but was forced on the unions by the employers. At the formation of the general board of arbitration, when Mr. Otto M. Eidlitz (who is also chairman of the board of governors as well as of the emergency committee of the Building Trades Employers' Association) was chosen as chairman; there was a tacit understanding that the secretary should be a labor man. Why Mr. Donnelly, being a printer by trade, and not a building trades man, was chosen we do not know. If it is urged on the ground of impartiality, such consideration applying to the chairman of the body as well, we might have done better to select a cigarmaker instead of Mr. Eidlitz for chairman. If that is not the reason, then it might have been better to select the secretary as well as the chairman from the body composing the arbitration board. It would at least overcome the condition that a shoemaker perforce cannot be a competent judge or critic regarding the mechanics of a watch or the economic or industrial necessities of its manufacture.

When, however, it is taken into consideration, that Mr. Donnelly is an employee of the Bosses' Association, that his salary is paid by them, that his stenographer is paid by the bosses, his desk, office furniture, supplies paid by them, and his office maintained in the Employers' Club rooms; then it becomes apparent why he becomes a truth contortionist in his effort to defend the system. The Building Trades Alliance in its efforts to obtain a fair and impartial arbitration agreement proposed:

Section 9. There shall be a general secretary elected, whose salary shall be paid by the employers' and employees' organizations; the headquarters of the general arbitration board shall not be the meeting room nor the club room of either the employers or the employees, and the expense of same shall be equally borne.

That, however, was not agreeable to the Employers' Association. It is true that unions believe in arbitration and desire peace. They believe, with President Roosevelt, that the surest way to maintain peace is to be prepared for war. (Not necessarily with a big navy, but in more appropriate ways.) It is not true that they accepted the existing state of arbitration because they believed it fair or practical. They were willing, nay, were by their conditions compelled, to sign, and hoped that it would prove fair and that their fears as to the result would not be realized. Yes; four fought it to the last ditch, and were broken up, compelled to sign and reorganize. One, the bricklayers and masons, have not signed it to this day.

Unfortunately, our fears were realized, and I do not hesitate to say, that there is not one of the legitimate building trades unions working under the plan to-day that is satisfied and will not throw off the yoke as soon as their condition warrants.

When he says, "that on July 18, the carpenters, in violation of the arbitration agreement, ordered a strike on the work of a member of the association," let us go into the facts of the case. And in connection with this, consider the statement "that cases of trade jurisdiction were not promptly adjusted for the reason that the unions parties to the complaint continually exerted their efforts to postpone arbitration with the hope that they would succeed in exterminating their adversary."

Section 15 of the arbitration plan reads: "The members of this association (Building Trades Employers) agree to employ members of the trade unions only, directly or indirectly, when parties to this agreement."

It is superfluous to point out that work sublet by a member of the association is indirect employment, and could only be performed by union men parties to the agreement. The Remington Construction Co. had sublet the carpenter work of the Van Norden Trust Co., building at 60th street and Fifth avenue, to the Geo. C. Flint Co. It became apparent early in May, 1904, that said Flint Co. was not making the trim for the building in their shop, as sixty-five (65) union men, parties to the agreement, were laid off there for want of work while none of this work had been done. The Flint Co. being a party to the agreement, had sublet the work to an out-of-town non-union firm located in Pawtucket, R. I., which firm did not employ union men parties to the agreement. The Flint Company, then a member of the Interior Decorators' Association, connected with the Building Trades Employers' Association, when it became apparent that the interior decorators did not approve this breach of agreement, joined the Master Carpenters' Association.

When in the end of May, the business agent of the carpenters called on the Flint Company regarding this violation of agreement, he was told that they had cancelled the contract, and would make the work themselves with their own men. This proved to be false, as in the first week in June the shop-made carpenter work began to arrive on the building from said non-union firm in Pawtucket, and the Flint Company immediately set to work to place it in position.

On June 10th, complaint was entered by the Brotherhood of Carpenters against the Flint Company for violation of Section 15 of the agreement, to the general arbitration board.

At the meeting of June 15 this complaint was referred by the general arbitration board to the Master Carpenters' Association with instructions to appoint a trade conference board to adjust same. On June 19th the union appointed its arbitration committee to meet the master carpenters' committee and adjust the complaint. On July 2d the master carpenters notified the unions that they would meet our committee re. Flint Company, on July 5th.

RESULT.

Mr. S. B. Donnelly, Secretary, General Arbitration Board.

New York, July 8th, 1904.

Dear Sir:—The conference of the Master Carpenters and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters held last evening for the purpose of settling the complaint against the Geo. C. Flint Company, as per orders of the general arbitration board, were unable to come to a decision.

We, the Brotherhood of Carpenters, wished to proceed immediately with the special board of arbitration as per orders of the general arbitration board. The Master Carpenters have refused to comply with the same. You are therefore requested to notify the Master Carpenters to name their arbitrators and proceed immediately to come to a decision in the above matter. Trusting that this will be attended to without delay, and oblige, Yours respectfully,

GEO. KLINTOP, President.
PATRICK KAVANAGH, Secretary.

New York, July 8th, 1904.

S. B. Donnelly, Esq.

Dear Sir:—During a conference committee meeting between the members of the Master Carpenters' Association and the representatives from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, a dispute arose as to the proper interpretation of a certain clause in Article 15 of the plan of arbitration.

Failing to agree, and believing the position taken by the United Brotherhood to be erroneous, the representatives from the Master Carpenters' Association refused to proceed with the discussion of the case in dispute until the general board of arbitration has given their ruling as to the proper interpretation of the clause in question.

The following resolution was there upon adopted by the members representing the Master Carpenters' Association:

"RESOLVED, That the committee representing the Master Carpenters' Association, believing that the interpretation placed upon Clause 15 of the arbitration plan by the committee representing the United Brotherhood, is erroneous, we would respectfully request the matter be referred back to the general arbitration board for an interpretation of this clause, and request that an answer be given at the earliest possible moment."

In compliance with the above resolution and at the request of the committee representing the Master Carpenters' Association, I would respectfully request that you call a meeting of the general arbitration board to pass upon the question at the very earliest possible moment so that the conference committee may receive its ruling and be able to proceed with the arbitration of the case in dispute.

Very respectfully yours,

JOHN A. SINCLAIR,
Secretary, Joint Conference Committee.

On July 11th, the general arbitration board met, and although strenuous efforts were made by the union members to obtain a ruling on Section 15 for the guidance of the Master Carpenters, all efforts in this direction were frustrated by the employers, and the meeting adjourned after passing a motion that the Brotherhood of Carpenters and their various Employers' Associations enter into an agreement within six (6) weeks.

In the meanwhile the work on the building steadily proceeded, and the non-union work was rapidly being erected. In fact, the largest part had already been erected and further delay threatened to complete the work before an adjudication could be arrived at. Then the union demanded interpretation of Section 15 from the general arbitration board at the meeting of July 18, 1904.

It was not given, and has not been done to this day. Only then did the union men on the building cease work, and promptly a lockout was ordered by the master carpenters. All of the above is fully shown by the official documents in the case, but it would make this article entirely too lengthy to quote them all.

Who then is responsible for the delay? In hundreds of cases the employers have subject work (done it indirectly) with others, then members of the unions, parties to the agreement. On March 3d, 1904, in a letter they informed the unions: "That their delegates must not decide questions of what is their work or what are non-union men."

Who then is competent to decide it? When unions have claimed that decisions of the general arbitration board were a direct violation of the arbitration agreement, employers have made motions to declare null and void the agreement signed with such union.—Case of Amalgamated Painters, December 23d, 1903. Nevertheless, Judge Dugro, as umpire, sustained the claim of the union.

It is safe to say that before arbitration can be successful between employer and employee, all questions of trade jurisdiction must be settled by the central body of the building trades (by the unions of employees between themselves) and not by the joint arbitration board, nor should employers take sides therein. Or does Mr. Donnelly believe that the jurisdiction established by a national organization of mechanics, laid down in their constitution made by referendum vote, can be changed by any local body of employers?

"Why does the unionist fight his fellow unionist so bitterly?" If the Typothetae were to lockout the members of the Typographical Union, and employ rats at longer hours or for less wages, and getting a State charter for these rats, style them Greater New York Typographical Union, would Mr. Donnelly extend the glad hand of fellowship to these alleged unionists? Or is there any principle of unionism he knows of that does not maintain the right of majority rule? Would he recognize the right of a minority to secede, not being able to dictate trade policy to the majority, and give them recognition as union men? Does he believe in splitting up organizations into specialities; or of one, having a trade of his own, to reach out for the work of another; to deprive that other one of his labor and thereby his means of existance?

If not, let him read his answer.

And where are the increases of wages that have been secured by the unions under the arbitration agreement? They have been denied the plasterers' laborers, denied the masons' laborers, etc. True, the metal lathers got an agreement to raise their wages from $4.00 to $4.50 per day to go into effect on May 1st, 1905, but that concession was given them to get them out of the Building Trades Alliance, and the same is true of the elevator constructors. That may not be bribery; it depends on the moral view you take of it.

Under the circumstances it is no wonder that Mr. Donnelly advocates that the Employers' Associations admit to membership all reputable employers, and that the employer who violates his agreement (to lockout employees and disrupt unions?) should forfeit the patronage of architects and owners. The Employers' Association might then become completely successful in dictating terms, not only to the poor mechanic, but also to the owner. Where then would the building public come in?

No; there is no revolution without a cause. No sores without a disease. To get a lasting peace in the building industry, the causes of dissatisfaction must be removed, not increased. When the employers become willing to meet the unions half way in a fair spirit of conciliation for the purpose of adjusting troubles and removing by mutual efforts the causes that lead to these troubles, then only can permanent peace be obtained.

Sending lawyers to Albany to defeat labor legislation. Attending open-shop agitations of the Parry organization. Lockouts, and attempts to disrupt legitimate labor unions, and attempts to dictate terms to the employees, will never bring about the desired result. Neither Aesop's fables or any other fairy tales will relieve the situation. Honesty of purpose and fair dealings is the only ground on which lasting peace can be established between employer and employee. And on that line the unions will always meet the employer half way.

The Story of Washington Heights

AN EXPERT'S EXPLANATIONS OF A REMARKABLE LAND BOOM

By CHARLES GRIFFITH MOSES

Part II.

AMONG the many features that have helped to make Washington Heights attractive to those interested in real estate has been the wise and liberal treatment accorded to this part of the island by the authorities in acquisition of land for park purposes. Probably no city in the world has a better park system than New York, and Washington Heights has certainly received its due in this respect. On the easterly side of the Heights, at its lower bounderies, is St. Nicholas Park, running from St. Nicholas avenue west to St. Nicholas terrace and Convent and Amsterdam avenues, with the new buildings of the C. C. N. Y. close by. A few blocks farther north lies Colonial Park, extending from 145th street north to 155th street, and from Bradhurst to Edgecombe avenues. Both of the parks are at present in a somewhat crude state, but owing to the physical aspect, are capable of most picturesque development, and will in the course of a few years resemble Morningside Park, one of the garden spots of lower Harlem.

Beginning at 155th street and St. Nicholas place is the Speedway Drive and Park, one of the greatest improvements of its kind ever undertaken in this city. When the prospect of the construction of this drive was first discussed, there was a storm of indignation from certain sources that such large sums of the city's money should be spent for the amusement of the comparatively few who drive fast horses. But so great was the Speedway's popularity from the day of its opening, that the city wisely decided to purchase all the property running along the bluffs between it and the old Croton aqueduct, and the resultant park has amply rewarded this determination. It is no uncommon sight on a pleasant Sunday morning to see anywhere from 10,000 to 35,000 people enjoying the sights of the Speedway.

Adjacent to the Speedway Park, on the west, lies the Highbridge Park, additional land for which is now being taken, so that on its completion it will enclose all the land between the old aqueduct and Edgecombe avenue, from 162 street north to 181st street.

The Speedway ends at Dyckman street, a broad thoroughfare that forms a connecting line with the Boulevard Lafayette, soon to be known as Riverside Drive. The Boudevard Lafayette, as originally laid out, extended from Dyckman street south to 157th street and Broadway, winding and turning to conform with the contour of the island. The drive skirts the Hudson along its entire course, and is soon to be joined to old Riverside Drive by the extension of the latter parkway now being built northward from Claremont and joining the Boulevard Lafayette at 155th street. Anyone passing along the Boulevard Lafayette must feel a thrill of patriotic emotion when he realizes that on the Heights above the Drive and commanding the river, once stood Fort Washington, Fort Tryon and the chain of outposts and redoubts connecting them. On all of this ground during the dark days following the Battle of Long Island, with its consequent retreat, occured the most desperate hand-to-hand fighting. Fort Washington Park takes in a large strip of land, including Fort Washington Point, and all that lying between the Boulevard Lafayette and the river north of 170th street.

Riverside Drive and Parkway just referred to, deserves more than passing mention. It consists of a wide driveway now in course of construction extending north from the viaduct at 135th street to 158th street and the Boulevard Lafayette cut into the side of a somewhat steep slope and with the parkway embracing practically all the land west to the Hudson River. This park cuts off the side streets, from 135th to 158th streets, rapidly building up with fine private houses, from the Hudson River R. R., and will doubtless have the same effect on this part of the Heights as lower Riverside Drive and Park had on the land from 72d street north to Claremont. This prevents the extreme westerly part of the island from deteriorating into a tenement section along the Hudson River R. R., as it did south of 72d street. Another improvement comparatively small but of great importance to the Heights, was the 155th street viaduct connecting McComb's Dam Bridge, 7th avenue and the Elevated R. R. with the Heights proper.

It must not be imagined for one moment that all hese vast improvements, these parks, these viaducts, these sewered and paved streets, intelligently planned and carried out to suit the special needs and physical conditions of this territory, came of themselves and without effort. Most of these improvements were started by the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, a small but enthusiastic body of residents and property owners banded together for the benefit of the public.

FUTURE PROSPECTS.

Let us now consider a subject that will perhaps interest my hearers more than anything I have previously said, I mean present-day conditions and future prospects. Washington Heights has been the scene during the past few months of the most remarkable period of activity probably ever known in the real estate history of this city. In September the first admonitions of the rush to come were a great number of sales of both large and small plots in the Dyckman section. A number of new buyers came into the field, many of them even up to that time entirely unacquainted with values so far uptown, but possessed of a kind of real estate man's sixth sense which enables him to tell instinctively what property is worth.

A good many of you may be familiar with the meaning of this term, "sixth sense," but some may not. I mean by this expression that intuition, the result of experience and knowledge that enables a real estate man to instinctively "feel" the value of property by simply looking at it even though he be entirely unfamiliar with the immediate neighborhood. The best example of this is my old friend, J. Romaine Brown, in whose office I served my apprenticeship. I verily believe that Mr. Brown could be set down on an island he had never seen before, and tell intuitively the value of land within its boundaries. To return to present conditions.

The prices brought at first caused some of the old guard to stand aghast, but soon everyone who was at all alive to conditions and whose mind was broad enough to realize and grasp facts, saw that the inevitable was beginning to come and the buying became more keen. This movement was of so decided a nature and was evidently so genuine in its character that operators and investors from all parts of the town began to take an interest and to investigate and consider the possibilities of Washington Heights as a field for activity.

The real estate speculator has his finger at all times on the pulse of the market, and it is he that is always the pioneer in the march of improvement. He thought for a moment and considered; he remembered that during the last eighteen months he had been through a period of tremendous activity in flats, not a boom in the western sense but a legitimate absorption of flats and apartments by investors. He knew that thousands of these properties had reached the hands of people who would hold them, considering them from an investment point of view only. He knew that the demand for flats in these houses continued without abating, and he saw that it must continue so; for the city grows from 100,000 to 150,000 in population each year, and each year more and more buildings used for dwelling purposes are being torn down to make room for business buildings, parks, railway terminals, etc. And in view of all these facts he knew that there must be more flats, for building has not kept pace with the growth of the city during the past few years owing to strikes and other causes, and the demand for housing accommodation was fast beginning to exceed the supply. So he looked about and said: "Where must the people go?" And he who was wise and observant, said: "There is but one direction in New York, and that is northward. Northward, yes, but how to get there?" For the average man employed downtown, must get to his place of business quickly without changing cars. And then came the Subway: with its approach opened a new era for Washington Heights.

THE PRESENT ACTIVITY.

The progressive speculator saw its effect in time, and made all possible haste to acquire all the lots possible, and when the road was finally opened and it was patent to everyone that Washington Heights to-day is nearer downtown than the West Side was three months ago, it is not hard to understand the desire on the part of almost every one interested in real estate on Manhattan Island to "go and do likewise." To us who have worked in this section for years and who have been familiar with the prospects, there is nothing so very remarkable about the present market. We have been just as sure that it must come some day as we were that the sun would rise, and we have been preaching this gospel, sometimes to unresponsive ears, for years. I am asked almost daily how long I think this state of things is to continue and how long prices will continue to advance, and my answer and firm conviction is that the activity in lots will not cease till every lot is covered with a building, and that when this becomes an accomplished fact there will be no better income-producing territory in the city than Washington Heights.

Though most of you are doubtless familiar with the fact that speculators and investors have been, as the phrase goes, jumping for lots on the Heights during the last few weeks, I doubt if you can realize just how quickly things happened. For instance, when Chas. T. Barney sold his Donnelly estate holdings from 133d to 136th streets and Amsterdam avenue to Broadway, to a syndicate of speculators, this large tract containing nearly three solid blocks, was resold, plot by plot, to other speculators so quickly that inside of forty-eight hours from the time the original contract was signed, not a lot remained in the hands of the syndicate. I have seen in the past few weeks lots sold and resold three or four times before title was taken.

The demand for vacant lots is still very great in spite of the fact that millions of dollars' worth of them have been bought. I sold the holdings of the Juvenile Asylum, running from 175th to 178th streets, and fronting on Amsterdam, Audubon and St. Nicholas avenues, a couple of weeks ago, and within one week from the time the news of this sale became public we had by actual count over 200 applications for blocks of lots in this tract. Most of the movement so far has been in the class of property suitable for improvement for dwelling purposes, but there is another phase of the situation which has been practically overlooked, and that is the development of lands suitable for commercial purposes.

COMMERCIAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Most large cities make the most of their water fronts, and the enormous fortunes of some of New York's old families are largely due to their holdings of this character of property. Now, with the exception of a few hundred feet at Inwood, the entire Hudson river water front is appropriated for parks or is, from the nature of the abutting land, unavailable for commercial purposes. The entire stretch along the Harlem river, from 160th street to Dyckman street, is occupied by the Speedway and the Speedway Park on the west of it. This leaves a scant two miles of water front on the Harlem from Academy street (200th street) north and west to the Hudson. The upland here, had it been built to order for the purpose, could not have been better adapted to the needs of a commercial city. One or two corporations have seen the advantage of this and are using the water front for business, and it will not be long before this entire stretch will be built up solid with factories and other buildings needing water front facilities. Lots in this section can still be bought for $4,000 or $5,000 apiece, and I am very much in error if in three years they do not double or even treble in value.

Whenever I hear people say, why, it is impossible for lots to go any higher in such and such a section, I think of an anecdote told by ex-Mayor Tieman shortly before his death. It was on an election morning a few years ago, and the old gentleman had driven up to the polls to vote; he was then over 90 years old, but just as clear-headed and shrewd as he had been in his prime. Some one began telling about real estate values, when Mr. Tieman gave one of his experiences. He told about buying the block front on 5th av, between 22d and 23d sts, for $800—$100 a lot—and not having enough money to take title, he tried to raise part of this enormous sum on mortgage. Every one he went to refused to lend him any money on this security, as it was too far uptown then and only fit for farm land or cattle yards. Finally he was able to sell his contract for $80 advance ($10 a lot) on what he had paid, so you see there were speculators in those days, too, and he thought he had done a good stroke of business. I suppose that property to-day is worth upward of $2,000,000. With the annihilation of distance and time by modern transit and telephone accommodations, this same advance is possible on Washington Heights.

A few years ago, not over four, I sold four inside lots, a plot 100x100 on the north side of 149th st, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway, for $40,000. At the same time the adjoining lots, the same size, 100x100, fronting on Broadway and including the corner, were for sale for less money. They were placed in my hands for disposal by the estate owning them, and after offering them to, I should say, fifty possible purchasers, I sold them for $35,000.

Investors, builders and speculators were so short-sighted that they could not see the future of Broadway at this point and time. To-day the first-mentioned plot were it vacant again would sell for $48,000, but the Broadway corner that sold for $35,000 is worth at least $75,000. Another instance is that of the comparison between 151st and 152d sts, between Amsterdam av and Broadway. When lots in 152d st were worth $6,000 or $7,000 each lots in 151st st were worth $2,000 apiece. To-day there is little difference in their values, not over $1,000, and that in favor of 151st st. There is no accounting for this except for the fact that one builder had the courage of his convictions and saw that there was no good reason for the discrepancy and bought the cheaper lots, improved them properly and reaped his harvest in the result.

MR. MORGAN'S CORNERS.

This photograph, by J. H. Symmons, shows Mr. J. P. Morgan's residence at the corner of 36th st and Madison av, together with part of the block front on Madison av, which he has purchased, and the frontage on 36th st whereon he is building a new art gallery and a residence for his daughter. The site is of interest inasmuch as Mr. Morgan is likely to build upon it a new and handsome residence,

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

The total number of sales reported this week for both Manhattan and the Bronx is two hundred and twenty-seven, as compared with three hundred and ninety-eight for last week. The largest falling off is in The Bronx, although the Borough is still well represented in a total of ninety-one deals, eighty-one of which were in lots. In Manhattan there was a large decrease in dealings in Washington Heights, and this is probably accounted for by the fact that a large part of the property has passed from original owners and the present holders are looking for builders.

McBride & Co., Inc., manufacturers of parquet floors and wood carpets, have removed their offices and factory to the Hall Building, 1932-6 Park av, near 131st st.

H. Huennekes Co., 114 Liberty st, makers of sand-lime brick, announce that their product has been given the highest award by the Jury of Awards at the St. Louis World's Fair.

Samuel I. Rockmore, dealer in stamped-metal ceilings, of 280 Henry st, has recently added to his stock a series of classified designs by Frank Vogan. These goods are manufactured by the Milwaukee Corrugating Co., and samples and estimates will be cheerfully furnished on application.

Edward L. Tilton, architect, 32 Broadway, New York City, has completed two Carnegie Library buildings, one at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., the other at Bayonne, N. J. He now has under way one in Cleveland, Ohio, one in Warren, Ohio, and one in Winsted Salem, N. C. Drawings are now being prepared by him for the library to be erected in Cincinnati, Ohio.

An excellent present for the coming holidays and one that is highly appreciated by the entire family, is a piano if it bears the name "Sohmer." The new scale Sohmer Bijou Grand is pronounced by musical experts the finest of its class; it is an ideal piano for the home of the cultured. The superiority of the Sohmer Upright Piano is recognized by all artists and the music-loving public. The salesrooms of the Sohmer Pianos are at Fifth av, corner of 22d st, New York.

Mr. P. K. Stepenson, the new secretary of the Building Trades Association, was formerly connected with the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange League, and has made a study of the labor situation for several years. He was instrumental in organizing the Employers' Association of Builders in the steel city, building it up to a membership of 1,200 contractors. He is rapidly grasping the situation in Greater New York, and is in favor of a Greater New York Building Trades Employers' Association, as a guarantee to the investor that his projects will be completed without encountering unjst obstructions.

Talk of a Tax Sale.

There is some talk in the Board of Estimate of a tax sale. Manhattan has had no tax sale since 1898, and Brooklyn has had none in twenty years or so. Consequently the city has about twenty million dollars in unpaid realty taxes on its books. At yesterday's meeting the Comptroller exhibited tables showing the financial condition of the city. There is also due a sum approximating fifteen million from franchise taxes, and thirty thousand of probably worthless personal tax bills.

"Waite's Stone House."

It is five stories high, and located on the north side of East 31st st and East River, and has the distinction of being the first building of its kind in Manhattan Borough.

The company have removed their offices and shops to this building, and now have the most complete equipment and means of manufacture of any firm operating in the United States, for the rapid, economical and perfect construction of fireproofing for buildings. CONVEYANCES

Whenever the letters Q. C., C. a. G. and B. & S. occur, preceded by the name of the grantee, they mean as follows:

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed covenants, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it. The street or avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

4th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

5th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

6th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

7th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property. The first figures being for the lot only, and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before 2d figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction.
